

Inflation puts wage earner in fight for survival: Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says that two years of rapid inflation have forced Americans to abandon efforts to improve their living standards "in favor of just plain survival."

In his annual Labor Day message released today, Meany said the problems of inflation and unemployment call out for humanitarian solutions but until now the government has treated the problems as mathematical equations.

"It is our hope the new President will see more than just cold, cruel numbers — that he'll see people, not percentages, and that he will move with compassion," he said.

Meany renewed labor's pledge to cooperate with the new administration and expressed hope that President Ford "will seek realistic solutions based on the people's needs, not the patent medicine of economic quacks."

As one measure, he urged Ford to bring down interest rates "so that our people can go to work and our families can get new housing."

"We in organized labor know there are common-sense, realistic solutions to inflation, to the housing crisis, to unemployment, to the high cost of food and medical care."

But the Nixon administration rejected labor's proposals and spurned its cooperation in favor of tight money policies and high interest rates, he continued.

The result is that "families are trading down — pot roasts to hamburger; hamburger to soybeans," Meany said.

Thousands of workers are losing their jobs and the cost of food, housing and medical care are getting beyond the reach of most families, said Meany, the 80-year-old leader of the 13.5 million member labor federation.

Meany said it is traditional on Labor Day to hail the high standard of living produced by American workers. But he added that this year, "we cannot, in truth be so optimistic."

"This year there is broad and justified concern — concern because a serious and continuing erosion in the living standards of most Americans is now in its second year."

"America has a new President and, while we have hope, we have no assurance that the end to the economic mess is in sight."

Ford goal: Jobs that make sense

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Ford got a warm welcome to Ohio's biggest campus today where he told 2,500 members of a graduating class that his administration will help young people "get a job that makes sense as well as money."

Ford was applauded frequently by some 10,000 Ohio State seniors, relatives and friends attending the graduation ceremony in the school's basketball fieldhouse.

The only signs of dissent were placards critical of the nation's Cyprus policy, held up by a handful of demonstrators outside the hall.

Speaking at summer commencement exercises, Ford said too many college graduates find a lack of job opportunities for their skills and, after further study and the acquisition of new talents, are told they are overqualified for employment.

"Although this administration will not make promises it cannot keep," he said, "I do want to pledge one thing to you here and now: I will do everything in my power to bring education and employers together in a new climate of credibility — an atmosphere in which universities turn scholars out and employers turn them on."

Ford said the Labor Department soon will announce a new program of grants to state and local governments "to provide data on occupations available and to help channel potential employees into positions which are not only personally satisfying but financially rewarding."

He also said he has asked the secretaries of labor and of health, education and welfare to report to him on "new ways to bring the world of work and the institutions of education closer together."

Ford said "skills and intellect must harmonize so that the wheels of industry not only hum but sing."

He continued:

"I propose a great new partnership of labor and academia. Why can't the universities of America open their doors to working men and women, not only as students but also as teachers? Practical problems solvers can contribute to education, whether or not they hold degrees. The fact of the matter is that education is being strangled — by degrees."

"I want to see labor open its ranks to the researchers and problem-solvers of academia whose research can give better tools and methods to workmen."

Ford said he will ask Congress next year to extend hiring laws dealing with both vocational and higher education.

"Both are essential," he said, "because we need new jobs and new skills."

Altering his tone somewhat, Ford concluded:

"Sometimes feelings can get lost in words. I don't want that to happen here today. And so I want to share with you something I deeply feel: The world is not a lonely place. There is light and life and love enough for us all. I ask you and all Americans to reach out and join hands with me — and together we will seek it out."

His speech was televised nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service.

The President made two references to the major economic problems facing his audience and the rest of the country. At one point he said:

"With the war over and the draft ended, your duty now to your country is to enlist in the campaigns being waged against our urgent domestic threats — especially inflation, which is Public Enemy No. 1."

Later he said:

"We must make extraordinary efforts to supply our know-how, our capital, our technology and our human resources to increase productivity at a faster pace. Inflation is creating a national state of anxiety. Productivity must improve if we are to have a less inflationary economy. In the long run, it is the only way we can raise wages without inflationary price increases."

Ford was making his second out-of-town speaking trip since becoming President three weeks ago, and officials here arranged a bipartisan welcome from Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan and Columbus Mayor Tom Moody, a Republican.

In awarding Ford its highest honorary degree, a doctor of laws, the university cited the new President "for the first steps in restoring to the people of these United States confidence in leadership, hope in the political process and the promise that once again all of us can begin to believe. You have revived that which is most basic to a free society: a belief in the value of belief itself."

The citation, read by university president Harold L. Enarson, referred to Ford as a "plain-spoken man from Michigan, effective leader for your party in the Congress, skilled conciliator of conflict."

Ford asks for names of women for top jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential counselor Anne Armstrong has been asked to submit a list of women eligible for top government posts.

"The President is listening and receptive," she said after a 45-minute meeting at the White House with President Ford and 27 leading women appointees on Thursday.

Deserter's return asked by Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government has received no reply from the U.S. State Department after requesting the return of a U.S. Army deserter captured by American customs agents on Canadian soil.

The Canadian Foreign Office delivered its request for the return of Ronald J. Anderson, 31, to the U. S. embassy on Thursday after the U. S. Customs Service admitted that its men went "a few yards" into Canada last Saturday to take Anderson into custody.

The customs men arrested the young man in Peace Arch International Park, on the border between the state of Washington and British Columbia, after he and his wife, Marion, drove across the border to visit his mother and his 11-year-old son by an earlier marriage in Poulsbo, Wash.

The Customs Service said Anderson broke away from its men and they crossed the border inadvertently to recapture him. A spokesman said the agents did not realize they had crossed the border until it was too late.

The customs men turned Anderson over to the Army, which is holding him at Ft. Lewis, Wash. A spokesman there said the Army was awaiting instructions from the State Department.

Anderson deserted from the Army in 1968 after it refused to classify him as a conscientious objector, according to his mother, Betty Peterson. She said he left the Army "because he didn't approve of the Vietnam war and couldn't stand the quick-kill methods they were trying to teach him to use."

Anderson has been living in Mission, B.C., and working as a carpenter. He has been granted landed immigrant status like most of the thousands of American deserters and draft evaders in Canada, and would have been eligible to apply for Canadian citizenship this fall.

One of Anderson's attorneys, David Shelton of Seattle, said the Canadian government's request "obviously strengthens our position quite a bit in the practical sense, but in a legal sense it doesn't do much."

He added, "You don't just kidnap somebody in a foreign country and haul him across the border when you don't have extradition..."

Anderson's wife said she was "on cloud nine.... How can they refuse?" She said her husband had crossed the border several times before to see his family without being detected.

The Foreign Office began investigating Anderson's arrest after another of his attorneys, Don Rosenbloom of Vancouver, B.C., said he had witnesses, at least one newspaper photograph and movie film showing that Anderson was captured in Canada.

Peter Rolston, a member of the British Columbia legislature, said the U.S. Customs agents learned who Anderson was by feeding the Canadian license number of his car into a computer. Rolston said he suspected the FBI obtained the name and address of the car's owner from the British Columbia Motor Vehicle Branch.

Tax increase out for '74, but possible next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for President Ford has ruled out any tax increase requests for this year but would not do the same for 1975.

Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst said it would be unrealistic to expect congressional action on taxes in the remaining weeks of Congress' 1974 session. "At this time, the President has no plans for asking for a tax increase," terHorst said.

But then he noted that Ford would be outlining his 1975 program in January. Asked if a tax increase to fight inflation would be part of Ford's requests then, terHorst said that is the "sort of issue a President always has before him."

And he added that tax increases sometimes are needed "just as a practical governmental matter."

Shortly after terHorst's remarks to newsmen, President Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers emerged from a half-hour session with Ford and had a good deal of praise for the new President.

But Woodcock said, "I would be opposed to a tax increase across the board."

Instead, Woodcock suggested tax cuts for lower and middle-income taxpayers and increases in the upper brackets and for corporations.

Woodcock said Ford was approaching the situation with candor and expressed hope that Ford's Sept. 27-28 economic summit meeting would help educate the public on the dimensions of the problems.

Later, a White House spokesman said

half a dozen preparatory meetings for the summit will be held at cities around the country.

TerHorst's remarks on taxes came as he relayed a statement from Ford on the appointment of presidential economic counselor Kenneth Rush as chairman of the new eight-member Council on Wage and Price Stability.

"This is an uphill struggle," Ford said. "We're all in it together. We must be tough with ourselves, we must be ready for sacrifices, and we must be prepared to stick it out over the long haul."

The council is to monitor wage and price activities and use persuasion to discourage those which might be inflationary.

Tokyo Mitsubishi bombed

TOKYO (AP) — An explosion believed caused by a time bomb in a business district street crowded with lunch-time strollers killed seven persons today and injured more than 125.

Police said they had no clue to those responsible for the blast outside the headquarters of Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, one of Japan's major businesses. They said they were searching for the driver of a car who ignored an officer's order to stop and sped away from the Mitsubishi building shortly before the explosion.

The blast left a hole the size of a football in the cement sidewalk at the entrance to the building. Two minutes before the explosion, a caller warned a Mitsubishi telephone operator that two time bombs had been set and "the operator should let everyone know quickly so they could seek shelter."

After the explosion, a call to Mitsubishi's Osaka office warned, "We'll conduct a class struggle tomorrow similar to what happened today in Tokyo." Police said that caller might be a prankster.

Mitsubishi is Japan's major defense contractor, but it has not been involved in any major public controversies.

The street on which its headquarters is located had been closed to vehicles at noon and made into a pedestrian's mall for the lunch hour.

The explosion blew out most windows in the office buildings within a block or two, and many persons on the streets were cut by flying glass.

"I saw a yellow flash followed by a blast, and then glass was showering down," said an employee of a bank across the street. "The people fell to the street and were moaning from their injuries."

Two of the dead were passersby whose legs were torn off. A third body was blown against the side of an old clothes truck parked at the curb.

Two other people died in the Mitsubishi lobby, apparently ripped apart by half-inch-thick glass shards from the building's doors. The walls and floor of the lobby were sprayed with blood.

Many persons were hurt at their desks when their windows blew in or light fixtures were blown from the ceilings. The offices of the Hokkaido Development Bank across the street from Mitsubishi were a shambles.

One American woman was among the injured on the street. She was Susan Lower, wife of John W. Lower, a cameraman for the American Broadcasting Co. and son of Elmer Lower, president of ABC News. She was cut on the leg by flying glass.

Ann Landers

Be sure to learn to type

Dear Ann Landers: I thought your answer to that 16-year-old girl who had stretch marks was pretty sarcastic and not a bit helpful. The girl told you that her stretch marks were not from childbirth, but from losing weight. She was especially unhappy about the stretch marks on her breasts and thighs.

You said, "Unless you have plans to be a stripper, I can't think of any good reason the stretch marks might interfere with your life."

Well, I'm 17 years old and I do plan to be a stripper. What advice do you have for me?—Baby Face June

Dear Face: Take typing or learn a trade so you'll be able to support yourself. The career of a well-paid stripper is about eight years.

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you repeat a column when a reader asks for it. I hope you will do me a big favor and rerun your definition of maturity. I had copies made when it first appeared in print and I sent them to my nieces and nephews. They said it meant a lot to them and I'm sure a great many other readers profited from it.

It's been five years now, and I hope you will favor us once more with that very special column. My thanks in advance.—E.A.D. In New Brunswick, N.J.

Dear E.A.D.: Here it is. Thank you for asking:

Maturity is many things. First, it is the ability to base a judgment on The Big Picture, The Long Haul.

It means being able to pass up fun-for-the-minute and select the course of action which will pay off later. One of the characteristics of infancy is the "I want it now" approach. Grown-up people can wait.

Maturity is the ability to stick with a project or a situation until it has been completed. The adult who is constantly changing jobs, changing friends, and changing spouses is immature. He cannot stick it out because he has not grown up. Everything seems to turn sour (or uninteresting) after awhile.

Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness, frustration, discomfort and defeat without complaint or collapse. The mature person knows he can't have everything his own way. Life won't allow it. He is able to defer to circumstances, to other people, and to time.

Maturity is the ability to live up to your responsibilities and keep your word. This means being dependable. Dependability equates with personal integrity. Do you mean what you say and say what you mean?

The world is filled with people who can't be counted on. They never seem to come through in the crunch. They are the cop-outs who break promises and substitute alibis for performance.

APA strongly supports ERA

The American Psychiatric Association (APA) strongly supports the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), according to a recent issue of "Behavior Today."

John Spiegel, the president of APA, contends that arguments against ERA — including the belief that it would undermine the family and deprive women and children of alimony and child support — are "hogwash."

"The vast majority of child support payments are never paid," he says, citing the fact that most children of broken homes are supported by mothers who work and who face discrimination in the working world. "Clearly," he says, "the passage of the amendment will vastly improve the mental health of about half of our population."

Merry Mixers change dance location

KAUKAUNA — Merry Mixer Club will dance at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Columbus Club, not in Darboy as previously announced. There will be a sandwich potluck. Red Vandt Logtr will be the caller.

Sand holds stems

If you're having problems arranging dried flowers in a small container, try the Colonial custom of filling the container with sand, suggests the Society of American Florists. The sand will hold the slender flower stems in place and will add stability to the container.

Invariably they show up late—or not at all. They are confused and disorganized. Their lives are a chaotic maze of unfinished business.

Maturity is the ability to make a decision and stand by it. Immature people spend most of their time exploring endless possibilities and then they do nothing. Action requires courage. And there can be no maturity without courage.

Maturity is the ability to harness your abilities and your energies and to do more than is expected. The mature person refuses to settle for mediocrity. He would rather aim high and miss the mark than aim low and make it.—Ann Landers (Copyright 1974)

Medical team hurt in plane crash

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP) — Four members of a volunteer medical group were injured Thursday when their light plane crashed after a mercy mission to an Indian reservation.

The pilot and a doctor, both from the Milwaukee area, were hospitalized in satisfactory condition. Two nurses from Plymouth were reported in good condition.

The plane had taken off from a rural landing strip at the Stockbridge-Munsee Indian Reservation when it skimmed tree tops and crashed.

The plane was en route back to Milwaukee via the Plymouth area after its passengers had helped treat and interview about 80 persons at the reservation.

They are members of Volunteer Intertribal Medicine (VIM), an informal organization of physicians, nurses and technicians which fly regularly to northern Wisconsin Indian reservations with free medical assistance.

Dr. Arthur Angove, VIM president, said the occupants were flying at their own expense in a four-seat Stinson borrowed from the Civil Air Patrol.

The injured doctor, Allan R. Crosby, 44, was a founder of VIM in 1971. He owns a larger plane which he occasionally uses to carry larger teams of doctors to reservations.

VIM says it now has about 60 doctors and 100 other medical volunteers throughout the state.

Hospitalized with Crosby was the pilot, Harry H. Hub, 49.

The nurses were Mrs. Doris M. Buckman, 45, and Miss Connie L. Skelton, 21.

Miller says it will be large enough to handle community sewage treatment requirements for longer than that.

The committee agreed to seek a revenue bond payment schedule equal to the plant life assigned to the operation by the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR). In other words, if DNR says the plant will be good for 30 years (which is Miller's current estimate), then an attempt will be made to sell revenue bonds to finance the local share over a 30-year period.

In other action, the committee referred the Appleton Redevelopment Authority's 1975 budget request of $25,000 to Mayor James Sutherland, to let him decide if he wants to include it in his proposed executive budget.

The committee also agreed to contribute $250 in city money to a National League of Cities effort to challenge the constitutionality of the recently-passed federal minimum wage law.

The law, which went into effect July 1, will raise the minimum wage for government and other workers from $1.90 to $2.30 over the next three years. It — will also require payment of overtime to firemen and others, something that many communities feel might be expensive for them.

The National League of Cities challenge, which is being brought to court in an Arizona case, questions the constitutionality of "federal dictation and control" of state and municipal employment rules.

plete also. The contractor for the storm sewer installation will work on final cleanup in the Calumet Street-Teluh Avenue area and around E. South River Street and Oneida Street.

The sanitary sewer replacement contractor also will finish cleanup along Brewster Street, in the area of Oneida Street and Appleton-Fifteenth streets.

Sanitary sewer installation will continue on the southeast side of the city. Crews will install laterals in the three streets north of Johnston School and then Theodore Street, between Lourdes Drive and John Street.

Bargaining set in utility strike

Bargaining was scheduled to continue today — the third consecutive day — between members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 2150, and the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. and its two affiliates.

Wisconsin Michigan Power, its parent firm, Wisconsin Electric Power Co., and another subsidiary, Wisconsin Natural Gas Co., brought forth a new proposal during the renewed talks that calls for a three-year contract with a cost of living escalator. Shorter term contracts had been offered previously.

A Wisconsin Michigan Power spokesman said no further details on the new offer were available, and no union spokesman could be reached.

The strike began Aug. 16, and no bargaining was held until federal and state mediators set up a session the 14th day of the strike. Talks were held prior to the strike.

Police & fire beat

Damage was estimated at $60 after two tires on a Department of Soil Conservation truck were punctured Wednesday evening. The truck was parked in the courthouse lot at Walnut and Sixth streets.

Elmer Brock, 315 E. Commercial St., told police someone punctured two tires on his car while it was parked near his home late Thursday.

Construction continues

Progress on Lawrence University's Sealy G. Mudd Library, scheduled to be completed in November of 1975, continues daily as construction crews complete initial building steps. The library construction, which began this spring, will cost an estimated $3.85 million. (Post-Crescent photo)

Outagamie accident rate lower than most of nation

Fox Valley residents seem to be less accident-prone than the average. Accident figures for the area and for communities in other sections of the United States were compiled by the Public Health Service as part of its annual vital statistics survey.

All types of accidents were taken into account, whether they occurred in the home or at work, while driving, swimming, boating or hunting.

Based on the last three annual reports, fatal accidents in Outagamie County have been averaging 48 per year, with 24 of them attributed to automobiles.

Included in the figures are all accidents in which local persons were involved, wherever they happened. Excluded were those affecting nonresidents.

Related to population, the toll in Outagamie County was at the rate of 40 fatalities per 100,000 people during the three-year period.

It was a lower rate than found in most other communities in the United States, where the average was 58 per 100,000. The rate in Wisconsin was 52.

Throughout the country, according to the National Safety Council, about 1,000 fewer persons died in traffic accidents in 1973 than in 1972.

It attributed the unusual drop to the fact that people did less driving and traveled at reduced speeds toward the end of the year because of the energy crisis.

Accidents have been responsible for a huge economic loss in recent years, the council found. The average over the last three years is placed at $29 billion a year. This takes into account loss of wages, medical expenses, insurance payments, reduced production and property damage.

Outagamie County's proportionate share of the cost, applying the average loss per accident locally, is approximately $12,096,000 a year.

The breakdown for the other sections of the area shows that Calumet County had 18 fatal accidents and nine auto deaths for a rate of 63 per 100,000 at a cost of $4,536,000. Waupaca County recorded 27 fatal accidents and 21 auto deaths for a rate of 73 per 100,000 at a cost of $6,904,000. Winnebago County showed the highest number of fatal accidents in the area, 54, with 21 auto deaths and a rate of 41 per 100,000 at a cost of $13,608,000.

MD telethon pledge center at Outagamie Bank

The Fox River area pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon from 10:30 p.m. Sunday to 6:30 p.m. Monday is located downstairs in the Outagamie Bank, 118 S. State St. The fire department will display its new snorkel from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and firemen's boots and a fishbowl will be used as containers for donations at the bank.

Contributions to the telethon help support research and free clinics fighting muscular dystrophy in the U.S., Puerto Rico and Guam. Locally, the program supports a clinic at Bellin Memorial Hospital in Green Bay. Volunteers from a variety of organizations will await pledge calls at 731-5251.

Enrollment up 20 per cent at UW Center

Fall term classes begin this week at the University of Wisconsin Center-Fox Valley with enrollment 20 per cent greater than last fall and rising, according to university officials. Late enrollment is possible through next Friday. Final enrollment figures will not be available until that time. Although some sections of some courses are filled, new sections have been opened in most cases. Prospective students should schedule counseling appointments now. The fall term extends through Dec. 18, with the traditional holidays, Labor Day and the Thanksgiving weekend, being observed by the university system. Advanced registration for January's semester II will be possible after Nov. 11. A study period of Dec. 7-9, during which no classes or university activities are scheduled, will precede examination week, Dec. 10-18. Semester II will begin Jan. 13.

District NFO meeting set for Saturday

FOND DU LAC — District delegates of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) will meet here at 10 a.m. Saturday at Petri's Restaurant to discuss marketing programs and resolutions for state and national conventions.

The organization's commodity marketing programs dealing with milk, beef and pork will be discussed during the meeting. Resolutions will be discussed and considered for submission at the state and national conventions.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and NFO President Orrin Lee Staley, Corning, Iowa, will attend the Wisconsin NFO state convention Oct. 5 at the Marshfield Senior High School Auditorium.

The national NFO convention will be conducted in December at Memphis, Tenn.

Steiger applauds pension reform

WASHINGTON — House of Representatives approval was given last week to a pension reform bill that Cong. William Steiger, R-Oshkosh, says "should do much to meet one of the most important social problems in America today."

The compromise legislation is designed to protect the pension rights of 30 million workers, Steiger said in his weekly "Washington Report." Its primary goal is to guarantee that workers who have been enrolled in pension plans for a number of years won't lose their pension rights if they quit or are fired or if their company goes out of business.

A new federal Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation is established under the bill. The federal insurance system will guarantee the worker up to $750 a month of his entitlement if his pension plan fails financially. The fund would be financed through premium payments from companies with pension plans.

Companies with pension plans or that start such plans after the law takes effect must meet certain minimum standards for funding, management, participation and vesting.

"The need for legislation to deal with the increasingly greater pension problem is clear," Steiger said. Only for million workers were covered under pension plans in 1940; today there are about 30 million workers covered. The amount of money involved in retirement plan assets has risen to $150 billion.

Steiger noted the new legislation provides regulations and standards that will cost more money, and if not carefully carried out, could serve to inhibit new pension plans from being started.

Juveniles arrested in possible burglary ring

Outagamie County police said Thursday they have broken what they believe to be a burglary and "fencing" ring with the arrests of four juveniles from the Black Creek and Seymour areas.

They said three of the four were directly related to an Aug. 1 burglary at the Stereo Village store in Reedsville, in which a truckload of stereos, radios, speakers, tape decks, walkie-talkies and other goods, valued together at $2,000, was taken.

Farm accident partially severs arm of man, 57

A 57-year-old route 2, Hortonville man was in fair condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital after having his right arm broken and partially severed at his farm Thursday afternoon. Injured was Arthur Wendt.

Police said Wendt was working on an unloader, which was stuck in the silo at the south end of his barn. He called to his wife to turn on the power.

At this point he slipped and was injured by the machine.

Wendt yelled to his wife to shut off the power, which she did. She then assisted him from the barn, applied a tourniquet to the arm and covered it to stop the bleeding.

When officers arrived at the scene, the tourniquet had been in place about 20 to 30 minutes and Wendt apparently had lost a substantial quantity of blood. An ambulance was summoned to transport Wendt to the hospital.

Natural gas firm seeks rate hike

MILWAUKEE — The Wisconsin Gas Co., which has branch offices in Kaukauna, Waupaca and New London, has applied to the Wisconsin Public Service Commission (PSC) for an increase in natural gas rates and a public hearing on the request has been scheduled at 10 a.m. Oct. 1 at city hall.

Copies of the firm's testimony and exhibits must be made available for public inspection at company offices at least 10 days before the start of the hearing.

Wisconsin Gas distributes natural gas to approximately 370,000 customers in 494 municipalities. The firm's present rates were authorized by the PSC in April, 1973, based on a test period in 1972, but since then costs of operation have increased substantially, according to the company.

Charges of burglary and possession of stolen property will be filed against the four in Juvenile Court, although investigators are seeking to have whom they believe to be the ringleader — a 17-year-old, route 4, De Pere, youth — waived to adult court to face three burglary counts.

In addition to the Reedsville burglary, police say they have tied the four in with at least two other area break-ins. Those include the Sept. 30, 1973, burglary of the Ted Dugener residence, route 1, Seymour, and the April 10, 1974, break-in at Techlin's Bar, Freedom.

An estimated $500 in coins was taken from the Dugener residence, while undetermined amounts of beer and money were taken from Techlin's.

Besides the three counts of burglary, police are seeking a felony charge of theft against the rural De Pere youth. All four youths are either 16 or 17.

Police said information gained in the arrests could lead to the arrests of three more persons on related charges.

About $1,200 worth of the stolen stereo equipment has been recovered. Most of it reportedly had been resold by the youths before their arrest. Many of the purchasers, from the Black Creek-Seymour area, voluntarily turned the goods over to investigators.

Police said they were tipped off to the activities of the ring by a service station attendant, who observed a quantity of stereo equipment in the trunk of a vehicle he was servicing. The investigation and arrests were completed in two weeks.

If you can spend $329.00 on stereo equipment, why not get something really terrific?

If you ask around, people — particularly salesmen — will tell you that the three-hundred-dollar range in stereo gear will get you something okay, so-so, not-so-bad, or maybe pretty-good-for-the-money. But we are here to tell you that for $329.00 you can put together a stereo system that sounds, and is, really stupendous.

The system hinges on the brand new Advent/2 speakers, which not only sound wonderful in and of themselves, for a lot less than other speakers, but need less expensive equipment than other speakers to do it. The Advent/2's are the latest product of people who have more than twenty years' background in making better and better speakers for less and less money. These new speakers manage to sound very close in every way to the best you can do at any price. And they also look great, with white molded cabinets (that fit in with a lot of ways of living these days) instead of the usual low cost imitation woodgrain enclosures.

To get the kind of sound the Advents have to offer at such low cost, we've picked the Kenwood KR-1400 stereo receiver. It is a really clean-sounding piece of equipment that can stir the Advents up to lease-breaking levels (if wanted or needed) and bring in all the radio stations (AM and FM) you want to hear.

To play records, we've chosen the Glenburn automatic turntable — smooth, dependable, and kind to your records — with the Shure magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus.

We wouldn't be spending our ad money and taking your time this way if we weren't convinced that we will both be congratulating ourselves for a long time for latching onto something really wonderful.

Please come in to Appleton Hi-Fi Center and judge for yourself. You can tell us we sent you.

Industry pushes for reduced plant size

BY MARK HANSMANN

Post-Crescent staff writer

MENASHA — Spokesmen for potential industrial users of the expanded wastewater treatment plant made it clear Thursday night they want the expansion project scaled down, or else built in stages.

Members of the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission, however, made it just as clear that they don't feel scaling down would be economically feasible.

The summit meeting held Thursday night at the Menasha Library served to air the feelings and concerns of industry and the commission together in one room. But it wasn't able to bring the sides to common ground concerning the future of the $29.2 million project.

One by one, the industrial spokesmen stood up to express concern that excess capacity in the plant design will pose economic hardships for the industrial users. None, however, committed their firms to be either in or out of the plant plans.

A chart prepared by officials of the Gilbert Paper Co. provided much of the discussion material at the meeting. David Dimling, the company spokesman, said the chart shows the proposed plant is "grossly in excess" of the needs of the Neenah-Menasha community.

The chart showed a plant design with overall average excess capacity of 66 per cent when operating on a dry weather basis, and 75 per cent on a wet weather basis.

"Although sewerage commission officials said those percentages showed the extreme possibilities, they didn't hesitate in admitting the plant is over-designed."

Much of the excess capacity was caused by Bergstrom Paper Company's decision to withdraw from its contract and construct its own treatment facilities. Although a ruling has not yet been received on whether Bergstrom's will be allowed to do that, the assumption Thursday night was that Bergstrom's is no longer considered a potential user.

Dimling said the Gilbert Paper Co. hopes to be a part of the plant as it is built, but "we can't commit ourselves tonight to building the plant with these kinds of excess capacities." He said the company hopes an alternative program can be settled on, perhaps by building the plant on a stage basis, "so we don't have this giant monument."

Allan Schenck, vice president of Menasha Corporation, followed by saying if present plans are followed, the most economical thing for his company to do would be "to install full treatment (facilities) and discharge to the river under the permit we have."

He noted, however, the company is taking other things into consideration and doesn't want to go the private route unless forced to. He said it would be best to "make every effort to break the project into two steps," with the first step scaled to those who want to be included in the plant, thus eliminating excess capacities initially.

Wisconsin Tissue Mills president James Asmuth said "we want to stay in the plant if the plant is designed for the present and viable future flow loads." But he said his firm also thinks the plant is "greatly over-designed."

"Can this community pay for the excess capacity that Mr. Dimling has shown on this chart?" Asmuth asked. "Can industry pay for the excess capacity?" He noted homeowners also will be affected, and should look at the figures.

David Martin, manager of government relations for Kimberly-Clark Cor., asked if the plant design could be altered within in the framework of the present bids. He said his company will review its options and hopefully have a decision by Sept. 8.

Commission officials closed the door on suggestions that the plant plans be altered without scrapping the bids that were opened on July 16. Sewerage commission attorney William Giese said rejection of the bids and re-application is the only alternative to building the plant as presently designed.

Menasha Ald. Grace Heinz joined in with the contention of the industrialists. "There is no justification for building the plant this size," she said. "I think we should at least try" to get an extension of the 90-day period in which current bids are good, she said. Chances of that were called "practically nil" by Giese.

Robert Bues, plant manager, outlined several other major reasons why the commission is in favor of building the plant as designed despite the excess capacity.

He said if current bids are scrapped, the Twin Cities will have to re-apply for the entire project through federal channels, and that re-application would be subject to new laws now in effect. Bues said a conservative estimate for the time involved in re-application is two years.

Bues also noted that new federal grant guidelines would require industries to repay their share of the grant in essence making it a loan to industries.

Rapid rates of inflation were also frequently mentioned, and some commission members appeared convinced that a smaller plant built in a couple of years would cost as much as the larger plant at current price levels.

Bues made several other points. He reminded that the Twin Cities are under orders to improve the treatment facilities, the current plant has no reserve capacity, and that on peak flow days the plant can't even handle existing loads.

"Can we afford to go through a two year waiting period?" he asked. Adam Haber, another member of the sewerage commission, said 10 million gallons of overbuild in a 40 million gallon capacity plant is not excessive. "The last time around this plant was disastrously underbuilt," he claimed, and he said that shouldn't happen again.

The industrial spokesmen continued to argue they shouldn't be forced to pay for such a large amount of excess capacity. Dimling said fast rising costs isn't justification for making hasty decisions. "Basically, we have the option of walking away," he said.

Dimling asked that the commissioners at least investigate staging the expansion to ease the burden.

Bues said sewage plant officials are in contact nearly weekly with federal officials, and they have "told us repeatedly" there is a chance the application will be rejected unless the plant is built as presently bid.

Financial considerations for homeowners to ponder were offered by Bues. He said an average homeowner user in Menasha would have an annual sewer user charge totaling $57.50. In Neenah, the average annual charge for a homeowner would be $51.90.

Industrial representatives agreed to meet with C-T consultants again today to get specific cost breakdowns for the individual industrial users. They must decide by Sept. 9 whether their companies will remain under contract to use the expanded plant, so that financing can be arranged before current bids expire on Oct. 15.

30-day weather outlook

This is the way the nation's weather shapes up for precipitation and temperatures over the next 30 days, according to the National Weather Service in Washington. (AP wirephoto map)

Rain may join cool air

The Fox Cities missed the cold temperatures recorded in other areas of the state overnight but it may get some rain to add to the unusual late summer weather picture.

Appleton's temperature only dropped to 50 last night, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., but other areas in the state were cold enough to report frost on the early pumpkins. Hazelhurst in Oneida County recorded an unofficial 30-degree reading. Eagle River and Rhinelander had 36 and Friendship had a 38.

Appleton's high reached 74 Thursday in a range from 81 at Verona to 59 at Land O' Lakes throughout the state.

A 40 per cent chance of rain is expected in the Fox Cities tonight as mostly cloudy skies prevail and the temperatures dip to the low 50s. Saturday should be partly cloudy and cool with a high in the mid-60s.

Southwesterly winds today should become northwesterly at 10 to 20 miles per hour tonight and then blow at 12 to 25 m.p.h. Saturday.

Sunday's outlook calls for partly cloudy skies and continued cool temperatures with the high in the 60s.

Appleton had no measurable precipitation in a 24-hour period. At midmorning today, the barometer was steady at 30.06, winds were out of the southwest at 4 m.p.h., relative humidity was 78 per cent and the dew point was 52 degrees.

Sunset today at 7:33 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 6:14 a.m. Moonset tomorrow at 5:11 a.m. Full Moon on Sept. 1.

The constellation Orion is now well up in the southeast at moonset. High above Orion is Aldebaran and well below the constellation is Sirius.

County airport in black; $400,000 project planned

BY DOUG KOPLIN

Post-Crescent staff writer

OSHKOSH — Armed with a balanced budget for 1975, members of the airport committee are planning to seek state and federal funding so about $400,000 worth of improvements can be made at Wittman Field.

The committee got its first look at the 1975 budget Thursday and learned that the projected operational cost of $156,000 will be offset by about $170,000 in revenue.

With income covering the annual operating costs, Michael Brock, airport manager, explained that he is now shooting for increases on the revenue side to begin eating into the capital costs, including debt retirement.

The comparable figures for 1974 are $140,000 in operating costs offset by $145,000 in revenues. Brock explained that as the revenues are now exceeding the operating costs, he will attempt to increase income to cover first the debt retirement and ultimately hopes to put the airport on a complete self-supporting basis.

What has helped is an increase in the federal aid levels for airport improvement projects. Previously, the funding level had been at 50 per cent, but has been hiked to 75 per cent and is as high as 82 per cent for some items. One of the items which will be in the higher category is the large fire truck (estimated at $98,000) which will be purchased to equip the fire station at the airport.

Another development expected to increase income is the 10-year landing fee contract with North Central Airlines expires at the end of this year. Brock is projecting a minimum of a 15 per cent increase. Currently, the county receives six cents per 1,000 pounds gross aircraft weight.

With preparations being made to apply for funding on the 1975 project, bids will be opened Sept. 19 on the fire station and fire truck.

Although the new project, tagged "04" because of its number designation from the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, had originally called for about $550,000 worth of taxi, runway and lighting improvements, the committee decided with the agreement of Orrin King, county executive, that about $110,000 could be shaved. The net effect on the 1975 capital outlay account should be about $47,000.

The major item in the project is construction of aprons and runways to serve two fixed base operators (FBO) which will be moved to a central section of the airport.

The original intent was to build the runways and vehicles access for the FBO's along 20th Street just west of the terminal building. However, a Federal Aviation Administration regulation — prohibition of buildings on land purchased with federal funds — has forced the county to find a new location.

An estimated $238,000 was earmarked for the aprons and taxiway. This will be cut nearly in half by providing access to only one runway instead of two. The intent is to build the other half in 1976.

The major item in the project is $129,600 to strengthen the taxiway and air carrier apron. The thin concrete now being used is beginning to break up, according to Brock.

Other items are $24,000 to relocate and light each end of the east-west runway.

Mobile van to offer veterans counseling

A mobile van, staffed by veterans services and benefits specialists touring Wisconsin as part of the Veterans Administration's National Assistance for Veterans program, will be in Appleton from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sept. 11 in the PrangeWay parking lot.

The purpose of the van is to reach veterans who have not made full use of their benefits and other services of the federal government. Information and counseling in education, home loans, medical benefits, job training and apprenticeship, compensation, pension and G. I. insurance will be available.

Tired Packers must make good showing

By CLIFF CHRISTL
Post-Crescent News Service

MIAMI, Fla. — Time has a way of transferring power in pro football. Seven years ago, the Miami Dolphins were a 2-year old expansion franchise coming off a 4-10 season, while the Green Bay Packers reigned as National Football League champions for the third straight year.

Now the monopoly of success has shifted.

It is the Dolphins who are seeking their third consecutive world crown, while the Packers are struggling to rise above mediocrity. As the 1974 pre-season nears an end with both teams hoping to rebound from crushing losses suffered last weekend, that probably explains why Don Shula and Dan Devine entered tonight's game with distinctly different approaches.

When the Packers and Dolphins clash at 7 p.m. CDT — live on WLUK-TV in the Orange Bowl, the stakes will be minimal as they always are in the exhibition season.

Yet it is almost essential that the Packers play with more inspiration than they did in losing to Denver 31-21 last Saturday. With evident concern, Devine, the Packer's coach, emphasized, "It is very important that we play better football than we played last week. We could improve a heck of a lot and still not win, but the idea is to win."

The Dolphins are coming off a 31-13 trouncing to Los Angeles. The defeat might have been distasteful, but it doesn't make tonight's game anymore crucial for the Dolphins. Very matter of factly, Shula, the Miami mentor, says, "This will be our third game in 12 days with a trip to the west coast sandwiched in between."

So it's been pretty tough physically we'll do the best we can to get out of this game and then regroup. We've got two 8-day weeks then to get ready for the regular season."

The last two weeks of the pre-season should provide a reliable indication of how the Packers will fare in 1974. Whether or not they are ready to ascend to the role of contender will likely be revealed by their performance tonight and next Friday.

"I think the next two weeks we're playing teams that have had a big share of veterans in. They're well conditioned and well coached. Miami is the Super Bowl champion, and Cincinnati was 10-4 and in the playoff," Devine said.

"It is the kind of tough competition we need at this point. We'll be better prepared to go into the regular season by playing tough competition."

No doubt, performing against the best and doing well would be rewarding. But should the Packers falter badly in the next two games it might be debilitating.

Neither team enters tonight's contest in ideal physical condition.

On the Dolphins, middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti will not play, while defensive end Bill Stanfill and cornerback Tim Foley are doubtful.

Foremost among the wounded on the Packers side is starting quarterback Jerry Tagge.

In addition, the Packers had a grueling week of practice in the Florida heat and probably won't be at a physical peak. "Normally this would be a real good opportunity to find out as a team how we rate against the best," defensive end Aaron Brown said. "But these are kind of unusual times. We're working a lot harder this week before a game. Right now we're concentrating on the regular season more than Friday night."

At this point, Shula isn't satisfied with his team's physical condition either. "We're not to where we'd like to be at this time," he said, before adding, "but I don't think other teams are either."

Although he labelled the loss to the Rams "a thorough whipping," Shula's hopes for the season haven't been the least bit dimmed. He still believes the Dolphins are capable of improving on their near flawless play of the last two years.

"We'd like to think we can improve," he said. "We hope to improve by being together another year and with our special team — by our young people improving."

The expected defections of Larry Csonka, Jim Kick and Paul Warfield to the World Football League, a year hence, have had no noticeable effects on the team, he said. Both teams will have a change in the offensive backfield tonight.

For the Dolphins, Mercury Morris is again healthy and will make his first start of the pre-season. The Packers will probably open with Pete Van Valkenburg, rather than MacArthur Lane, at running back. Lane missed three days of practice this week, while in Chicago participating in labor activities.

Cards' Curtis yields 1-hit

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

John Curtis, the St. Louis Cardinals' 26-year-old left-hander, came within one pitch of the third no-hitter this year and the first in the National League.

But that one pitch rocketed off the bat of San Diego's Fred Kendall in the eighth inning and wrecked not only the no-hitter but the shutout as well.

Fortunately, Jim Dwyer and Mike Tyson got a couple of hits when they really counted and gave Curtis an 8-12 record and the Cards a 3-1 victory over the Padres Thursday night.

In the ninth, Bake McBride, Ken Reitz, Dwyer and Tyson hit successive two-out singles to move the Cards within half a game of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

In other National League games, Los Angeles beat Chicago 3-1, New York whipped Houston 7-0, San Francisco nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 in 11 innings and Atlanta downed Montreal 7-2. In the American League, Boston beat Chicago 3-2 and Baltimore defeated Texas 6-2. Dodgers 3, Cubs 1.

Andy Messersmith and Mike Marshall combined to three-hit the Cubs and give the Dodgers their fifth straight victory to widen their lead in the National League West to 3½ games over Cincinnati.

Messersmith held Chicago hitless until rookie Pete LaCock led off the seventh inning with his first major league homer.

The Mets snapped Dave Roberts' 26-inning scoreless streak in the first inning when Bud Harrelson doubled and came around on Felix Millan's bunt single and a sacrifice fly by Ted Martinez. They added three more runs in the third, then scored their final three in the sixth off reliever Jim York.

Dave Kingman drove in two San Francisco runs with a fourth-inning homer and an 11th-inning single that beat the Pirates.

Gary Matthews opened the 11th with an infield single and was bunted to second. Dave Guisti then walked Chris Speier intentionally before Kingman singled to left. Willie Stargell sent the game into extra innings with his 21st

Lucas may challenge NCAA eligibility ruling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Star basketball player Maurice Lucas says he wants to return to Marquette this year and challenge National Collegiate Athletic Association eligibility rules.

Lucas, star of Marquette's NCAA finalist team, filed for and received "hardship status" for the National Basketball Association draft.

The Chicago Bulls selected him on the first round, but he never signed and now wants to go back to school to get his degree in broadcasting.

Lucas, visiting his sister and playing some summer league basketball, informed Marquette officials Wednesday that he'll be back in school and is eagerly looking forward to leading the team to a national championship.

"Hey, that's great, I think," Marquette coach Al McGuire told the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Lucas, a 6-foot-8, 205-pound backcourt man, would be challenging the NCAA's hardship status which allows a player until the day of the NBA draft to change his mind and remain in school. The player loses college eligibility once the draft begins.

These are the rules of the NCAA and would indicate Lucas is not eligible to play for Marquette this year. But the rule has never been challenged before.

Lucas, raised in Pittsburgh, has homer, a ninth-inning shot. Braves 7, Expos 2.

Mike Lum's ninth homer gave Atlanta a 1-0 lead, the Expos tied the score in the bottom of the second, then Ralph Garr hit his 10th after Steve Rogers hit Vic Correll with a pitch and Larry Lintz dropped Rogers' throw at second on an attempted force play. Red Sox 3, White Sox 2.

Wilbur Wood's record slipped to 19-16 after Rick Burleson drove in two of Boston's runs in the victory over Chicago that widened the Red Sox' American League East lead to five games over the New York Yankees. Orioles 6, Rangers 2.

Tommy Davis keyed Baltimore's victory over the Rangers with a three-run single in the fourth inning. After Texas scored a run in the bottom of the fourth, Brooks Robinson led off the fifth with his seventh homer.

Lucas may challenge NCAA eligibility ruling taken his case to Philadelphia attorney Richard Phillips, who represents many professional athletes.

It is "absurd to consider him a professional, simply because he once considered being a professional," Phillips said.

"I'm still not a professional, right?" Lucas asked. "Why can't I go back to school and finish what I started to do in the first place, which is play ball and get a degree?"

The official statement to come from Marquette was "we welcome Maurice back and will inquire about his eligibility. Obviously, we are hopeful of having him back as a member of the basketball team."

Asked of the possibility he might not play any basketball this year, Lucas responded: "I'm ready to deal with that or with whatever happens. At least, even if I don't play at Marquette, I'll get my degree. Time was that money was all I cared for. It's not that way anymore."

Lucas said several teams approached him before the draft and one of them, Chicago, talked of impressive money offers.

"They said one thing before the draft and another after it," Lucas explained. "And that is the real problem now. They are playing games with money."

Owners reiterate determination to keep Rozelle Rule

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League strike, or non-strike, is nearly two months old, the start of the regular season is just over two weeks away, and some very key issues are far from settled.

Foremost is the Rozelle Rule: when a player plays out his option to become a free agent and signs with another club, if the two teams cannot agree on compensation, the decision is up to Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, reiterated the owners' opposition to elimination of the Rozelle Rule at a press conference Thursday.

"The Rozelle Rule is very closely tied to our system," said Thompson, "and we are asking the players to accept our system. We will modify it, but we will not eliminate it."

The players, however, say this inhibits their freedom to negotiate and that clubs are wary of signing free agents because they do not know what Rozelle will make them give up as compensation. They want the Rozelle Rule eliminated, and this has been one of their key demands.

Thompson, meanwhile, called the offer which the NFLMCC submitted to the players Tuesday, and which was rejected by the NFL Players Association, "very close to a bottom-line offer. We think it was a good offer—probably the biggest offer ever made to players by a management in pro sports. But we are not going to say, 'This is it, take it or leave it.'"

That offer included modification—but not elimination—of the Rozelle Rule.

Besides that disagreement, Thompson indicated that the length of the contract has become another major stumbling block.

"We need a four-year contract," said Thompson, "but the players want one or two years. We need four years for two reasons: first, the fans, owners and players need to have four years of labor peace; second, the loss of $12 million the owners have suffered this pre-season has to be taken care of."

"There will be no winners whenever this is settled," he added.

That apparently includes the NFL Players Association. More than a few veterans have expressed disappointment at the way their union has handled the dispute, particularly the "cooling-off period" originally called Aug. 14 and extended earlier this week.

"The flame is gone," declared wide receiver Randy Vataha of the New England Patriots. "The mood of our team is passive. The guys don't like what has happened, but there isn't much we could do about it."

"They (the owners) can do anything they want with us now, and we won't have much to say about it," said New England's Len St. Jean.

"I'm bored with the strike routine," said Gene Washington, player representative of the San Francisco 49ers. "From now on, I'm concentrating on pass patterns."

Eddie Bell of the New York Jets called the strike "a waste. If I had to do it all over again, I wouldn't go through with it. It's all wasted now—we don't even have a contract."

And Norm Sneed of the New York Giants criticized the union's tactics.

"A strike is a last resort—the one weapon unions have that can strangle management. Instead, we used the strike as a bargaining tool. We went in and started talking strike right away. The owners accepted it and prepared for it."

But Doug Swift, player representative of the Miami Dolphins and one of the more outspoken strikers, disagreed with those who said the union has suffered a defeat.

"We obviously didn't win anything, but it's not a loss," Swift said. "We have been effective, and that shows we have a strong union. And we haven't lost our bargaining strength—we can still withhold our services."

Meanwhile, there was no indication when union and management might return to the bargaining table. Chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. presently is involved in a mining dispute and unavailable for an indefinite period.

Foxes win, open playoff

WISCONSIN RAPIDS — Larry Walters ended a mild slump in the first inning Thursday crashing a three-run home run to propel the Appleton Foxes to a 4-3 win over Wisconsin Rapids in the finale of the regular 1974 Midwest League season.

The two teams open the best-of-three Northern Division playoff here at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Jim Geddes, 4-2, is slated to pitch for Appleton and Mike Van De Castele, 14-7, is to hurl for Rapids.

Thursday's victory was the 47th of the second half and enabled the Foxes to finish with a glossy 47-18 mark. The Twins concluded with a 38-27 record. Wisconsin Rapids, however, is 80-48 for the year, while Appleton is 73-50.

Appleton won three of the four games in the windup series to even its season record with Rapids at 9-9. The final four games were decided by one run.

Left hander Bill Srock walked Nick Medrano to lead off the game and then walked Kevin Bell with two out. Walters, who had only one hit in his last 10 at bats, crashed his second home run of the season to

Chris Evert victor again

Friday, Aug. 30, 1974

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis.

B-5

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert jumped the gun on wedding tradition in her 1974 debut at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships. She wore something borrowed. Not for luck, but for lack of a dress, left behind in Greenwich, Conn., where she is staying during the tournament. She donned an understated little A-line gown by Kris Kemmer and overwhelmed Gail Chanfreau of France 6-1, 6-1 on the West Side Tennis Club's grassy center court Wednesday. Then, the future Mrs. Jimmy Connors answered endless questions about her pending marriage. "I'm just glad the wedding is only two months away," she said. "Then maybe all of the publicity will die down and we will have some privacy. Miss Evert has won 13 events so far this year, including the last 10 in a row. Connors has won 11. Their most lauded victories, however, were at Wimbledon, which earned them their respective No. 1 seeds for Forest Hills. Although Chris is the bride-to-be, Billie Jean King looked more the part. Pale-skinned, from indoor World Team Tennis play, Mrs. King put on a white lace dress with matching long-sleeved jacket for her match with another WTT player, Isabelle Fernandez of Colombia. Mrs. King, the No. 2 seed, won handily 6-2, 6-2.

Crowds turned out in record numbers for the second straight day, and were pelted by late-afternoon rain for the second straight day, but what they saw was pure sunshine. Fifth-seeded Evonne Goolagong, the effervescent Australian, defeated Jeanne Evert, Chris' younger sister, 6-3, 6-0; Rosemary Casals, the No. 6 seed, ousted Barbara Downs, a fellow Californian, 6-2, 6-2; and Kerry Melville of Australia, the No. 4 seed, advanced when Anna Maria Pinto-Bravo of Argentina defaulted at 4-0 in the first set. Although rain washed out the scheduled matches of Jimmy Connors and Stan Smith, who share top ranking among United States men, there was plenty of other action to excite the 13,128 tennis buffs. All of the seeded men who competed advanced, but only Arthur Ashe and Manuel Orantes ran out their victories in the minimum of three sets.

Ashe, the No. 8 seed, eliminated Trey Waltke of St. Louis 6-3, 7-6, 6-2 and Orantes, the 10th seed from Spain, ousted Frantisek Pala of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 7-5, 6-4. Sweden's boy wonder, Bjorn Borg, the No. 4 seed, held on through a rain-delayed match and finally downed Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. Tom Okker, the sixth-seeded Dutchman, had to go four sets to topple a tenacious Erik Van Dillen of Apts, Calif., 5-7, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2 and Marty Riessen, seeded 11th, lost the first two sets but rallied for a 6-7, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0 triumph over Steve Krulvitz of Baltimore. Another relatively unknown American, Ferdi Taygan of Framingham, Mass., gave Guillermo Vilas, the No. 9 seed a tough test, but Vilas eventually prevailed 6-3, 6-2, 6-7, 2-6, 6-3.

Bay, Packerland loops open

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

Area teams are expected to play a major role in deciding the Bay and Packerland conference football titles. Both leagues open play Friday. Luxemburg-Casco invades Chilton in a feature Packerland game. Oconto Falls plays at Seymour and DePere travels to Clintonville in 7:30 p.m. Friday Bay Conference contests. Chilton is one of six teams considered to have a shot at the Packerland title. Clintonville is a high pick in the Bay, while Seymour is expected to challenge for a first division berth.

Defending champion West DePere and Marinette are expected to be the main powers in the Bay. Clintonville could move ahead of one or both if the offensive and defensive lines meet their potential.

Keying the Trunkers hopes is an outstanding array of linebackers headed by all-Bay selection Dennis Schultz. Eight of the Trunkers 15 lettermen were starters in 1973.

Paul Hensel returns at quarterback and Pat Reddy and Dave Oesterreich are back at halfback. Schultz is also a fullback, while Doug Olk was a starting guard along with junior Randy Ruch. Interior linemen include 200-pounders Jim Ellesen and Tom Sanders.

Seymour's strength will be running back Bill Patza, an all-around athlete, who was a second team all-Bay pick last year. Patza finished fourth in rushing with 635 yards in 121 carries.

The Indians have 12 lettermen back, but several are doubtful performers, including tackle Kelvin Henn and end Mike King. Other starters back are Randy Reed, Tom Haase, Steve Wendt, Joe Schmitt, Greg Palubicki and Kenny Moes.

The jumbled Packerland Conference could be won by Sheboygan Falls, Algoma, Luxemburg-Casco, Kewaunee, Plymouth or Chilton. Sheboygan Falls is the defending champion.

Chilton compiled a 6-3 mark last year but most of their offense graduated. The main need appears to be in the offensive backfield where a quarterback and some ball carriers would help.

The Tigers' defense is expected to be tough with a little more size and quickness than recent years. Five starters return on defense, including linebackers Joe Kobriger and Jim Kleinhans, ends Dan Kopf and Mark Boll and tackle Paul Schlaefter.

Chilton's chances could be determined in the season-opener where Luxemburg-Casco, 3-6 last year, has 20 lettermen returning. The Spartans main threats are quarterback Mark Porath, receivers Larry Seidle and Bob Vandermuse and running backs Dan Majeski (also a pass-catching threat) and Mike Jandrin.

Mequon's Dick Sucher in quarter-finals of amateur

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — It's Campbell and the Kids in today's quarter-finals at the 74th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship. Fifty-one-year-old Bill Campbell, who won the national event in 1964, scrambled to a 1-up victory in 19 holes over Steve Lejko, 20, of Bethesda, Md. on the Ridgewood Country Club course Thursday.

In the fourth quarter-final, Jeff Pomerantz, 24, of Weston, Conn., was to battle with Gary Koch, 21, of Temple Terrace, Fla.

Following a one-hour lunch break, the four remaining players were to face off to determine the two contestants for Saturday's 36-hole match-play finals.

Campbell has yet to play anyone older than half his age. There was more of the same in store for the tall and lean insurance agent from Huntington, W. Va., as he faced Jerry Pate, a 20-year-old University of Alabama student from Pensacola, Fla.

In other quarter-final action, Jerry Courville, 39, of South Norwalk, Conn., was to face NCAA titlist Curtis Strange, a 19-year-old Wake Forest student from Virginia Beach, Va., while Dick Sucher, 37, of Mequon, Wis., was to meet John Grace, 26, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Weekend fishing outlook

Outdoorsmen are finding good berry picking in the north along with some fair sized muskies, according to the Department of Natural Resources. Fishing has been very good in Lake Michigan in the southeastern region of Wisconsin, with 11-pound coho, shiner, chinook and 6-pound Atlantic salmon taken. A few muskies are still hitting in Pewaukee lake (Waukesha county) and walleyes are hitting in Nemadlin and Nagawicko lakes (Waukesha county).

Coho are providing good fishing from piers off Manitowish county, and in other Lake Michigan action, lake trout trolling is average off Door county. Good catches of white bass have come from the Wolf river and a 15-pound northern was caught on Gilbert lake (Waushara county). Several 5-pound bass have been caught in Oconto county lakes, and blackberries are providing some fantastic picking. Muskies have been biting in the Summit lake area in Langlade county, within the North Central region, and blackberries are biting throughout the Wisconsin Rapids and Antigo areas. Muskie action has been good around Woodruff, with nice walleyes and bass hitting after dark.

In the Northwest, muskie fishermen saw a nice 47-inch, 30-pounder taken from Trude lake in Iron county, and a 43-inch from Butterfield lake at Park Falls. Good eating size walleyes are biting in Round lake, and brown and lake trout are starting to hit in Lake Superior.

LAKE MICHIGAN DISTRICT
Waukegan area — Best trout streams are Comet creek, and the Little Wolf river. Set lining is picking up on the Wolf river. Some fair catches of white bass are reported on the Wolf river.

Green Lake county — Perch and bluegills continue to be caught in good numbers on Big Green and Little Green lakes. Fishing on the Fox river and other waters has been slow.

Waushara county — A 15-pound northern was caught last week in Gilbert lake on live bait.

Marquette county — Fair catches of northern, perch and bluegills are reported on the west portion of Buffalo lake.

Green Bay area — Fishing remains good on Lake Michigan, depending on the weather and wind. Perch are biting on the Sheboygan marsh. Panfish are being taken on Crystal lake in water depths of 20 to 25 feet.

Door county — Lake trout trolling is producing fair results. Some chinook are being taken in the ship canal at Sturgeon Bay.

Manitowish county — Coho are providing good pier fishing. Lake trout trolling is producing good results for fishermen. Some chinook salmon are being taken at Manitowish.

Oshkosh area — Panfish are being taken on Moline lake using night crawlers for bait.

Calumet county — Fishing on the east shore of Lake Winnebago is very slow.

Winnebago county — Fishing in all area lakes is very slow.

Marquette area — Bass action is good. Several 4 to 5 pounders were taken from small lakes in the Manitowish area. Fishing in the early morning hours with surface baits is producing the best results. Muskie action is good. Several keepers were taken from Chute pond, White Potato, Bear and Mungus lakes. Nice northern were caught in Anderson lake and Reservoir pond. Brown trout are starting to hit off the Oconto breakwater. A fantastic crop of blackberries is being harvested.

Rockets shy on experience

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEENAH — "In comparison to other teams, I'm not too optimistic. We're only fair. We're short on experience and don't have much depth at specific positions."

Thus, Neenah High School Coach Gary Parker assesses the Neenah High School football situation as he drills his charges for a tough non-conference opener against Racine Park here Sept. 7.

The Rockets have 11 returning lettermen, but only several were full or part-time starters. They graduated 18 seniors, including the entire starting offensive backfield and several all-conference performers.

Among the departees were running back Dave Eccles, an all-league choice who ranked second in FVA rushing, Mike Hanseter, all-FVA defensive back, and Tom Spice, all-league linebacker. Other key graduates included tackles Tom Milliken, Rick Mullard and Kit Kranz, guards Todd Patterson and Steve Kallin, quarterback Alex Maslow, linebacker end Steve Schulz and halfback Frank Douglas.

Doug Bennett, who ran at both quarterback and running back last fall, is slated to handle the signal calling chores. "He'll do a heck of a job," Parker said.

Chris Meyer, who lettered at defensive back, and letterman Steve Paisig and Jeff Ellis are working at running back. Meyer and Dan Rodgers, a junior, are backups to Bennett. "In this league, you need more than one quarterback," Parker pointed out.

Tight end Dan Varberg alternated with Schulz but currently is sidelined with a knee sprain. Tackle Jim Korth, who started several games on offense a year ago, has been shifted to guard and Richard Rasmussen, reserve guard, now is at tackle.

Dave Hillebrandt, who started most of the games at center is back, while other returnees include defensive tackle Phil Johnson, tackle-kicker Paul Erickson and defensive back Kurt Zimmerman.

Parker said currently two or three boys are battling for most positions. "We don't have many positions nailed down. The boys haven't shown that they want it that bad," the coach added. "We're not real big and don't have any speed. Our fastest man did the 40 in five seconds," Parker declared.

"If we're going to be a contender our strength will have to be defense. On offense, we'll have to stress hustle and execution."

Parker added that six or seven juniors will have to come through but that they need maturing. Last year's jayvee team had a 2-5 record.

The Rockets are especially shy of talent at the linebacking posts where all of the starters graduated. Meyer and Zimmerman have experience in the defensive secondary while Johnson, judoist-wrestler, was a regular defensive lineman.

The Rockets squad fluctuates between 48 and 50 candidates, divided almost equally between seniors and juniors. The sophomore candidates work out at Shattuck High school, and Parker doesn't expect to use any of them on the varsity team.

Parker is beginning his third year here. Parker's first team tied for the Fox Valley Association crown, while last fall his club was 3-2-2 for third place.

Asked to voice on his opinion as to this year's likely titlist, Parker noted that "every one is tough in this league and can beat anyone else on any given day."

"If I had to nominate one it would be Appleton West because of its returning players and unbeaten jayvee team," Parker said. He rated Menasha, Kaukauna and Oshkosh North right behind them and said right now he'd pick Neenah somewhere in the middle.

J. C. Snead shoots 64

ATLANTA (AP) — J.C. Snead, a former minor league baseball player and nephew of golfing great Sam Snead, fashioned a course-tying 64 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead in the rain-splattered first round of the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship, but he refused to let it get to him.

"I try not to get excited," said the 32-year-old veteran who hasn't won on the tour in over two years.

He belted out 10 birdies during his round, including five straight and seven on his first nine holes. He also had a pair of bogeys as he took his slim lead over obscure second-year pro Tom Evans, who had a 65 in the opening round which was marred by three thunderstorm delays. The weather caused play to be suspended for two hours, 35 minutes.

The 45 players who did not finish their rounds will conclude their opening play today before the second round begins in this initial TPC tournament, which is worth $50,000 to the winner in addition to a 10-year tour exemption and an invitation to the U.S. Open. The players are dedicated to making this event a fifth major tourney, joining the Masters, U.S. Open, PGA and British Open.

Two strokes behind Snead over the par 72, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course are Jack Nicklaus and journeyman Bobby Mitchell. Roth had 66s. Alone at 67 was Homero Blancas, while at 68 were Rod Funseth, Roy Pace, Larry Hinson, Gibby Gilbert, Bob E. Smith, and Tim Collins.

Will this be Walton, Malone era?

NEW YORK (AP) — First, there was the George Mikan era of pro basketball. Then came the period beginning with Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain. They were followed by Lew Alcindor, now known as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Now it's Bill Walton — and possibly Moses Malone.

The big difference between Malone and the other dominant centers is that they attended college before turning pro and he did not.

But the rare leap from high school in Petersburg, Va., last season to the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association this year does not faze the soft-spoken, confident 6-foot-11 potential pro superstar.

"I think I can make the team," he said in classic understatement Thursday at a gala news conference officially announcing his signing of a contract estimated at more than $3 million.

"I plan to work hard," continued the ambidextrous youngster. "I am not a selfish player. I know the importance of playing team ball. And that's what I will try to do."

Malone said he patterns his play after Spencer Haywood, a former star in the ABA and now an All-Star with the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association. Not only does Malone have great size, but also tremendous quickness. His best shooting range is from 15-18 feet and he is an excellent shot-blocker.

At Petersburg, he led the school to 50 straight victories over two seasons and two state championships while averaging 39 points, 26 rebounds and 12 blocked shots per game. He also was twice a high school All-American.

"Moses does things the way Haywood does," said Bucky Buckwalter, who formerly coached Haywood and now is the Stars' director of player personnel and considered the top candidate for the team's coaching vacancy. "He can overpower you from the inside and shoot well from the outside. He also is a great shotblocker and rebounder."

Gilliam duels Jurgensen

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

One of the most successful quarterbacks in the National Football League preseason has been Pittsburgh's Joe Gilliam.

And when he leads the Steelers against the Washington Redskins tonight, Gilliam will be placing his skills in comparison with the Steelers' Terry Bradshaw and Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, two men who have made success a habit.

If Gilliam continues his success, it could mean failure for the two veterans.

Gilliam this preseason has led the Steelers to four straight victories. He has completed 53 of 86 attempts for 874 yards and leads the league with seven touchdown passes.

Meanwhile, Jurgensen, the 18-year veteran, is still trying to prove he has recovered from off-season knee surgery and will undergo a critical testing tonight that could nudge him onto the taxi squad and into ultimate retirement.

Bradshaw also has been hampered by an injury — to his passing arm — and has found himself in the second slot behind Gilliam.

In the other games tonight, Green Bay is at Miami and Detroit is at Buffalo.

On Saturday, Philadelphia will face the New York Giants at Princeton, N.J.; Denver will meet New England at Spokane, Wash.; Baltimore will be at Atlanta; Minnesota at St. Louis; Kansas City at Dallas; the New York Jets at New Orleans; Los Angeles at San Diego, and Chicago at Houston.

Cincinnati and Cleveland will play at Columbus, Ohio, on Sunday and Oakland will be at San Francisco in a nationally televised game Monday night.

Ford issues statement on friendship with Europe

Friday, Aug. 30, 1974

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Menasha-Menosha, Wis.

A-2

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is planning personal meetings with European leaders and looks forward to "a productive and cooperative relationship" despite an edgy exchange with French president Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.

Ford's views on European relationships were reflected in a deliberately worded White House statement issued on Thursday, two days after Giscard criticized the President for not mentioning Europe in a major congressional speech.

Both presidents are new in the job and must deal with Franco-American relations that have been frequently bumpy in recent years.

But Ford also obviously sought to reassure Europe that it remains high in the American mind. And the statement pointed out steps he took in his first days as President to communicate with the Europeans, though they weren't specifically mentioned in his Aug. 12 address to Congress.

The note of sharpness came at the end of the brief statement read to newsmen at a late afternoon White House briefing. It concluded:

"The President looks forward to a productive and cooperative relationship with France and our other friends in Europe as well as with the existing emerging institutions of the European community, but this requires reciprocity on the part of our partners."

Giscard said Tuesday night on French television that Ford's omission of Europe in his speech to Congress was an indication to him that Europe should look after its own affairs. He called for a late November or early December European summit meeting.

The White House statement said Ford "is planning personal meetings with allied leaders as soon as it is mutually convenient."

Deputy press secretary Jack W. Hushen would not say if this meant a European trip is in the works for Ford.

The only European leader now scheduled to come to Washington is President Giovanni Leone of Italy, due here Sept. 25.

The White House statement said, "We applaud efforts toward European unity and we welcome vigorous European policies in the spirit of the Atlantic Declaration signed in June at the summit in Brussels."

But to counter Giscard's suggestion that Ford was ignoring Europe, the statement pointed out that Ford:

—Met with representatives of all NATO countries within two hours of his swearing-in on Aug. 9.

—Wrote personal messages to allied leaders on Aug. 9.

—Met individually with allied ambassadors, including the French ambassador.

It also declared, "Our record of commitment to our alliance and to Europe is clear."

At about the same time the overture to European allies was being issued, senior State Department officials reported that the United States and East Germany would establish formal diplomatic relations, probably by next week.

These officials said an announcement is expected Friday that an East German delegation will arrive here next week to complete work on documents to be exchanged.

Press harassing him, Agnew complains to Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, in a published letter to the Washington Post, took issue today with use of the word "leniency" in the headline of an article regarding his legal problems.

He also complained of being "harassed by the news media."

"Leniency in my case? That is to laugh," Agnew wrote.

"The whole story will be told later; meanwhile, please bear in mind that the bribery and extortion charges against me are unproved, that I denied them on national television and that I continue to deny them," the brief letter said.

It added:

"For my decision not to contest a single tax charge, I have lost the right to practice my profession, lost a substantial pension, temporarily lost my right to vote, and have won the right to be harassed by the news media and be consistently referred to as a convicted felon who has admitted to all the acts I have specifically denied."

Agnew resigned as Richard M. Nixon's vice president last October and pleaded no contest to one count of income tax evasion. He subsequently was disbarred as a lawyer in Maryland.

In a reply printed beneath Agnew's letter, the Post said: "Neither in the Aug. 23 news story nor at any other time has this newspaper suggested that the former vice president has admitted to any criminal acts other than the tax charge to which he pleaded nolo contendere (no contest)."

The editor's note added that "this plea was described by the judge in the case as the equivalent of a plea of guilty, giving Mr. Agnew the same legal status as though he had been convicted."

The disputed headline read: "Agnew Case 'Leniency' Effect Eyed."

The newspaper said the word "leniency" was "a reference to a direct quotation from an interview with former Deputy Atty. Gen. William Ruckelshaus in which he also referred to the 'special treatment' accorded to the vice president."

Lithuanian thwarted in attempt to defect to U.S. freed by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Simas Kudirka, the Lithuanian seaman convicted of treason for trying to defect to America, has been freed from prison, Soviet civil rights leader Andrei Sakharov said today.

The action by the Soviet authorities may have cleared the way for Kudirka to leave for the United States, the country of his mother's birth.

Just last month U.S. authorities ruled that Kudirka made a valid claim to American citizenship.

Bette Davis' rehearsals stopped by back strain

NEW YORK (AP) — Film star Bette Davis has suffered a mild back strain while rehearsing the Broadway-bound musical "Miss Muffett."

The play's scheduled performance in Baltimore Sept. 9-21 was canceled, and the first showing is now scheduled for Philadelphia on Sept. 23.

A spokesman said Miss Davis, 66, developed pains in her left leg during rehearsals on Tuesday and the following day was admitted to a hospital. The ailment was diagnosed as a back strain, requiring physical therapy for at least one week.

"Miss Muffett" is a musical adaptation of "The Corn is Green," in which Miss Davis starred on the screen 29 years ago.

Hard labor ordered for GI who landed 'copter at White House

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — A young Army private is beginning a six-month term at hard labor as punishment for landing a stolen helicopter on the White House lawn.

Twenty-year-old Robert K. Preston was sentenced by a military jury on Thursday after a three-day trial in which he pleaded guilty to charges stemming from his Feb. 17 aerial escape.

Preston called it a strange sentence but added, "It's easy to live with six months." He promised his mother, "I ain't going to fuss and fight no more."

Preston's defense attorney, Capt. Herbert Moncier, said, "We're very disappointed" and announced that he planned to appeal the sentence.

The eight-man military panel sentenced Preston to one year at hard labor, but military judge Col. Kenneth A. Howard ruled that six months of pre-trial confinement in a maximum security facility must be subtracted from the sentence.

The jury of four officers and four enlisted men also ordered Preston to pay a $2,400 fine by forfeiting $200 a month in salary for one year.

Preston was liable for a maximum sentence of 2½ years at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge, but jury foreman Lt. Col. Paul Makowski said the panel had voted against expelling Preston from the Army in order to avoid putting another "blemish" on his record.

"The boy does have potential. We felt it might inhibit his rehabilitation," Makowski said.

The panel required six hours of deliberation to arrive at a decision.

Preston admitted stealing the helicopter from the Ft. Meade airfield, buzzing both the Washington Monument and the U.S. Capitol and twice landing on the South Lawn of the White House.

"I meant no harm," Preston told the jury, explaining that he only "wanted to get attention to the problems I had."

Taking the stand in his own behalf, Preston claimed that the Army had unjustly extended his tour of duty after flunking him out of flight school. Preston said he was mad at the Army and depressed by troubles at home and with a girl.

Prosecutor Capt. Stephen M. Dichter asked the jury to expel Preston from the service. "He's embarrassed the Army. He's rubbed the Army's nose in it," Dichter said.

Paying his debt

Philippe Petit, arrested for a daring highwire walk Aug. 7 between towers of New York City's World Trade Center, fulfills the terms of his "sentence" to entertain the city's children. Here he inches up a line 80 feet above Central Park's Bevedere Lake. Petit's 40-minute performance included somersaults, bounces and near falls. A crowd of 10,000 watched. (AP wirephoto)

License renewed for hot rodder of 104

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — "Age don't mean nothing," proclaims 104-year-old Roy M. Rawlins.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles apparently agrees because it has just renewed Rawlins' license despite his being caught doing 95 miles per hour in a 55 mileper-hour zone.

"His driving ability is very good and he is physically and mentally very, very alert," says state examiner John Burratato, who gave Rawlins his latest driving test.

Rawlins, who has been driving for 65 years says, "I feel like I was 16 years old."

Rawlins says he has never received a speeding ticket. But he almost got one a few weeks ago.

"I was doing 95 on my way to Modesto and I got caught. They didn't give me no ticket, but that policeman sure gave me hell," he says.

Now, he says he has learned his lesson — "It made me start thinking about saving my neck so I don't drive over 40 now."

Erwin Cooper, information officer for the Department of Motor Vehicles, says Rawlins is the oldest of 310 licensed drivers over 90 years old in California.

"And I'd say all 310 of them have conditional licenses that say they must wear glasses, can't drive at night or can just drive to the store," Cooper says.

"All except Mr. Rawlins."

Nixon expenditure request exceeds legal limit by nearly $250,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — A budget request of $850,000, nearly a quarter-million dollars more than provided for under law, is being made for former President Richard M. Nixon's pension and expenses through next June 30.

The budget request was developed by the General Services Administration after consultation with the former president. President Ford sent it to Congress on Thursday.

During his first six months out of office, Nixon is entitled to $450,000 in transition expenses, which is included in the request.

He also is entitled to $60,000 a year in pension, and the former Presidents Act of 1958 provides $96,000 a year for salaries of staff.

The transition period would end Feb.

9, 1975, at which time the law calls for Nixon to be eligible for about $150,000 in staff and pension funds through the end of the fiscal year.

But the request made on Thursday calls for funds of $400,000 to be provided for the period Feb. 9-June 30, 1975.

Not included in this would be the cost of Secret Service protection for Nixon or the value of the buildings at the former Western White House that he is using as an office.

Transition funds and subsequent office expenses were also paid for former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Meanwhile, Nixon personally received a pair of subpoenas delivered by Deputy U.S. Marshal John Wetmore to his San Clemente, Calif. home.

One calls for the former president to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial of his closest former aides. The second seeks a written statement in a suit filed in Charlotte, N.C., claiming that White House aides and local officials illegally prevented the complainants from attending a 1971 rally in honor of the Rev. Billy Graham at which Nixon spoke.

Nixon could seek to avoid the court appearance by asking to have the subpoena quashed. However, a spokesman for his new lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr. of Washington, declined comment on whether such a request will be made. The trial is scheduled to start Sept. 30.

The Nixon budget request for the period Feb. 9 to June 30, 1975, includes the full $96,000 for staff. That's nearly $60,000 more than if the $96,000 annual allotment were pro-rated for the shorter period.

FHA making loans available to cattlemen

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent farm editor

Loans are being made available by the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to cattlemen hit hard by high corn prices and rising expenses but the head of the state cattlemen's association doesn't think the loans will be of significant benefit in Wisconsin.

The loans, which actually are made by lending agencies and guaranteed by the FHA, are to save farmers who otherwise might be forced out of business, according to Henry Tolliver, Appleton, FFA county supervisor in Outagamie and Winnebago Counties.

John Craig, Mukwonago, president of the Wisconsin Cattlemen's Association, said Thursday, in a telephone interview that he did not believe the loans will be of help to many Wisconsin farmers.

"I doubt if there will be a single loan in the State of Wisconsin."

Beef raisers in western states, such as the Texas and Oklahoma panhandle regions and in Colorado, have lost large amounts and they might benefit. In Wisconsin cattlemen are smaller operators and probably will not benefit.

"The loan program is more of a psychological lift than it is adequate help," said Craig.

The loan program guarantees farm loans up to $250,000 at interest rates which are negotiated between farmers and lending agencies. There is no forgiveness factor in the loan program. A forgiveness factor in some past emergency loan plans had "forgiven" parts of loan repayment and had been issued at one per cent interest rates.

Tolliver said, however, that some farmers already have inquired about the emergency program and that it is likely that loans will be made.

He said the program was designed to help farmers who face financial disaster. "What we are trying to do is save these individuals."

The program can provide loans for up to 80 per cent of losses with a ceiling of $250,000. It is primarily designed for farmers raising beef cattle but in some instances might apply to dairymen, said Tolliver.

Information about the program may be distributed to farmers, in the future, through the mailing service of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, another arm of the agriculture department. Information also is being made available to lending institutions, said Tolliver.

Farmers may sign up for aid under the program through July 25, 1975. The program also could be extended for another six months by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Farmers who face emergency financial difficulty are eligible, said Tolliver. He said that it is important that applicants be immediately facing an emergency. The program is designed specifically, he said, to help farmers avoid going out of business.

"We don't want anyone to go out," he said. The funds may be used for purchase of replacement stock, repair or replacement of machinery, fences and holding pens, refinancing of debts, feed purchases or seed, fertilizer or other seasonal expenses.

1974 tart cherry crop near 124,000 tons

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The nation's crop of tart cherries this year is expected to be about 124,000 tons, an increase of 42 per cent from the short 1973 crop, according to the state-federal crop reporting service.

Michigan, long the leading tart cherry state, will dominate the harvest with an estimated 95,000 tons, or nearly twice the yield of last year. The Wisconsin cherry yield is forecast at 3,700 tons, a gain of 1,300 tons from the poor 1973 crop.

State statisticians said crop conditions in Door County, the center of the state's commercial cherry orchard industry, vary considerably because a May frost damaged the blossoms in widely scattered areas.

Award

Badger, Beaver Valley, Gillingham, Lakeshore, Mikesville and Winchester clubs.

The Lucky Star 4-H Club will conduct its reorganizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the VFW hall in Freedom.

New children interested in joining 4-H are invited to attend the meeting. All parents of old and new members should attend this meeting. Information on projects for the year will be presented.

Families interested in joining the 4-H program entitled 5-H for Head, Heart, Hands, Health and Home, can call contact the University of Wisconsin-Extension Office at the courthouse in Chilton.

Activities for the year will include bike hikes, ski schools and trips and group participation in weight control through diet and physical fitness.

All programs in 5-H are being designed around home and family participation rather than individualized activities. The first ski and safety classes will be Nov. 15. Families will be charged a $20 enrollment fee after the charter membership ends Sept. 30.

Dairy project animals for 4-H and FFA members will be on sale Sept. 7 at the Calumet 400 sale. The annual sale held the first Saturday after Labor Day usually has several top quality calves for farm project animals.

The sale is at the arena in the Calumet County Fairgrounds. The calves and dams are together, along with production records. The project animals have good age for senior calf classes at next year's fair, according to Richard La Croix, UWEX agricultural agent.

Colleen Krahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Krahn, route 1, Brillion, is the recipient of the Howard Clapp Memorial Award. The award was presented by Raymond Johnson, vice chairman of the State Fair Board.

Krahn has been a member of the Brillion Future Farmers of America chapter and has completed nine years of 4-H work with the Farm and Home 4-H Club.

The award is made annually to either an exhibitor of Holstein-Friesian cattle at the Wisconsin Junior State Fair. Only one exhibitor of all the counties in the state that are represented at the fair is chosen for the award, which is based on good sportsmanship and fellowship, cooperation with officials, showmanship abilities, fitting and training of animals, neatness of showman, courtesy to the public and the judge and care of the animal after show day.

Ten 4-H clubs and Future Farmers of America-high school vocational agriculture departments won rosette dairy barn exhibit awards at the Winnebago County Fair. Six beef clubs were also awarded rosette beef barn awards.

Rosettes were not available at fair time but will be presented to agriculture instructors and project leaders of the respective groups at the first opportunity. They are now available at the University of Wisconsin Extension Service Office.

Dairy awards for best exhibits as grouped in the fair barn went to the Badger, Enterprise, Gillingham, Lakeshore, Mears, Poygan, Rara-Lee-Rest, Winchester, Winnebago FFA, Winning Wolves and Zion 3-C clubs.

Milk co-op sales up 28.5 per cent

BY JOHN LUMPKIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Officials of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., saying the cooperative has "been put to virtually every conceivable test", nonetheless reported Tuesday annual sales were up 28.5 per cent, a record.

The nation's largest dairy cooperative, has been embroiled in Watergate-related political funding controversies and exhaustive antitrust suits.

In a joint statement, accompanying its 1974 financial report, General Manager George Mehren and President John Butterbrodt said, "It has been a hard year, but a good year."

"We have been put to virtually every conceivable test of the market, the government and the public forum known to mankind. We have endured and passed these tests with strength and unity," the pair said.

The cooperative, headquartered here, holds its annual meeting this weekend in Minneapolis.

Whether there will be unity or not may be in question.

John Ertel, a San Antonio lawyer and a dairyman, told The Associated Press, "It's no secret I'd like to see a change in management."

Ertel, a voting delegate in the cooperative, said he will attend the Minneapolis meeting.

"Many, many dairymen I've talked to are not pleased with present management or the present board members," Ertel said.

The cooperative's financial report said sales for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974 were just under $1.42 billion, an increase of 28.5 per cent of $315 million over the previous year.

The cooperative, which markets 12 per cent of the nation's milk for its 37,000 members in 22 states, said it derived 73 per cent of its 1974 revenues from manufactured products, principally cheese, butter and dehydrated milk products.

Although sales were a record, net margin was down 27 per cent from the previous year.

"However, AMPI continued to return the maximum to its members in their monthly milk checks," said the cooperative's announcement.

"In the year, 95 cents out of every dollar in revenue were returned to the members. This compares to 94 cents in the previous period."

The cooperative recently pleaded guilty to making an illegal corporate contribution of $100,000 to former President Nixon's re-election campaign. It has agreed to terms of a proposed consent decree which would settle the federal government's antitrust suit against it, but other private suits and a state suit are pending.

Three of its former officials have pleaded guilty to campaign contribution violations. A former attorney, Jake Jacobsen, is lined up to testify against former Treasury Secretary John Connally when Connally faces charges of accepting $10,000 of milk producer money allegedly in return for help with government action.

The cooperative's money was involved in controversial contribution to Nixon, as Nixon ordered a 1971 milk price support increase. A White House whip paper denied favors were returned.

Milk

The top butterfat producing cow on the honor roster of the Calumet County Dairy Herd Improvement-Agriculture Records Cooperative for July is a 4-year-old on the farm of Art Hoerth, Chilton, with 21,570 pounds of milk and 805 pounds of butterfat. Top milk producer was a 4-year-old from the farm of Don Lemke, with 24,200 pounds of milk and 752 pounds of butterfat.

The other 4-year-old to set production records for July is from the farm of Leslie Schnell, Hilbert, with 16,700 milk and 665 butterfat.

Topping the two 2-year-old Holsteins in July were Dan Maurer, Chilton, 19,230 pounds of milk and 709 pounds of butterfat; Joe Juckem Jr., Chilton, 13,980 milk and 587 butterfat; Van Treeck Brothers, Kaukauna, with 12,770 milk and 554 pounds butterfat; Don Lemke, Hilbert, 12,830 pounds milk, 550 pounds butter.

Three-year-old cows topping production classes belong to Ron Redig, Hilbert, 15,570 pounds milk, 742 pounds butterfat; Martin Biese, New Holstein, 16,350 milk, 723 butterfat; Sylvester Wagner; Chilton, 14,320 milk, 664 butterfat; Leonard Woelfel, Hilbert, 16,970 milk, 649 butterfat; Al Keuler, Kiel, 16,470 milk, 643 butterfat; Wagner, 14,710 pounds milk, 634 pounds butterfat.

Those leading the mature cow class were from the farms of Redig, 18,750 pounds milk, 794 pounds butterfat; Joe Mersberger, Hilbert, 20,560 milk, 784 butterfat; Van Treeck Brothers, 18,140 milk, 768 butterfat; and Huebner Brothers, Brillion, 19,730 pounds milk, 706 pounds butterfat.

Opposition registered on proposal

MADISON — State Rep. Gordon Bradley, R-Oshkosh, and Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton have both spoken out against the recent proposal to charge dairy farmers for the operation of the state dairy plant security and bonding program.

According to Conradt, "the governor asked the Department of Agriculture to cut their budget by six per cent and charge fees where feasible. This is just another way to tax the farmer who is having enough troubles just making ends meet during the time of inflation."

"When the state spends so much of the taxpayer's money for welfare, criminal justice and other programs, certainly the state should use some of their funds for programs for people who work and pay taxes," Bradley said.

The program proposes a check off of one cent per hundred pounds of milk for a one month period. Anyone shipping 1000 pounds per day would pay $3 that one month, which would be his share for a period of two years.

While the cost would not be prohibitive to the dairyman, both representatives believe the concept is wrong. "It could set a precedent so that the agriculture board could ask the dairymen to pay for milk inspections in future years," Bradley said.

State canning crops set new record high

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The state's planted acreage of snap beans, limas and beets for canning set a new high record this year and acreage of peas and sweet corn, the major canning crops, are at near record totals, the Wisconsin Canners and Freezers Association reports.

While acreage devoted to canning crops rose generally across the country this year, the Wisconsin increases were higher than those for the nation.

Milk prices, production still falling

MADISON — Recent monthly declines in milk production and prices paid to farmers continued in July, according to H. M. Walters, state-federal statistician with the state agriculture department. He said the declines in milk production are normal seasonal decreases which will continue through November, usually resulting in higher milk prices to farmers.

Milk production during July totaled 1.5 billion pounds, down one per cent from last year and a 9 per cent seasonal decline from June. Output per cow at 890 pounds was equal to July of last year, but there were 19,000 fewer milk cows on farms.

Correspondingly, milk prices paid to Wisconsin farmers dropped $1.80 a hundredweight during the first seven months of 1974," he said.

At the same time, total stocks of cheese in the U.S. at the end of July amounted to 572 million pounds, up 46 per cent from a year earlier and the highest for that date since 1955.

The wholesale price of cheddar cheese stabilized during July after declining more than 20 cents a pound from April through June. Cheddar cheese in 40-pound blocks averaged 71.16 cents a pound in July for the fifth consecutive month.

Nationally, 92-score butter prices and stocks of butter in cold storage continued to decline. Butter prices were almost 2 cents under last year in July and cold storage stocks were down 8 per cent.

Inflation puts wage earner in fight for survival: Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says that two years of rapid inflation have forced Americans to abandon efforts to improve their living standards "in favor of just plain survival."

In his annual Labor Day message released today, Meany said the problems of inflation and unemployment call out for humanitarian solutions but until now the government has treated the problems as mathematical equations

"It is our hope the new President will see more than just cold, cruel numbers — that he'll see people, not percentages, and that he will move with compassion," he said.

Meany renewed labor's pledge to cooperate with the new administration and expressed hope that President Ford "will seek realistic solutions based on the people's needs, not the patent medicine of economic quacks."

As one measure, he urged Ford to bring down interest rates "so that our people can go to work and our families can get new housing."

"We in organized labor know there are common-sense, realistic solutions to inflation, to the housing crisis, to unemployment, to the high cost of food and medical care."

But the Nixon administration rejected labor's proposals and spurned its cooperation in favor of tight money policies and high interest rates, he continued.

The result is that "families are trading down — pot roasts to hamburger, hamburger to soybeans," Meany said.

Thousands of workers are losing their jobs and the cost of food, housing and medical care are getting beyond the reach of most families, said Meany, the 80-year-old leader of the 13.5 million member labor federation.

Meany said it is traditional on Labor Day to hail the high standard of living produced by American workers. But he added that this year, "we cannot, in truth be so optimistic."

"This year there is broad and justified concern — concern because a serious and continuing erosion in the living standards of most Americans is now in its second year."

"America has a new President and, while we have hope, we have no assurance that the end to the economic mess is in sight."

Ford goal: Jobs that make sense

Deserter's return asked by Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government has received no reply from the U.S. State Department after requesting the return of a U.S. Army deserter captured by American customs agents on Canadian soil.

The Canadian Foreign Office delivered its request for the return of Ronald J. Anderson, 31, to the U.S. embassy on Thursday after the U.S. Customs Service admitted that its men went "a few yards" into Canada last Saturday to take Anderson into custody.

The customs men arrested the young man in Peace Arch International Park, on the border between the state of Washington and British Columbia, after he and his wife, Marion, drove across the border to visit his mother and his 11-year-old son by an earlier marriage in Poulsbo, Wash.

The Customs Service said Anderson broke away from its men and they crossed the border inadvertently to recapture him. A spokesman said the agents did not realize they had crossed the border until it was too late.

The customs men turned Anderson over to the Army, which is holding him at Ft. Lewis, Wash. A spokesman there said the Army was awaiting instructions from the State Department.

Anderson deserted from the Army in 1968 after it refused to classify him as a conscientious objector, according to his mother, Betty Peterson. She said he left the Army "because he didn't approve of the Vietnam war and couldn't stand the quick-kill methods they were trying to teach him to use."

Anderson has been living in Mission, B.C., and working as a carpenter. He has been granted landed immigrant status like most of the thousands of American deserters and draft evaders in Canada, and would have been eligible to apply for Canadian citizenship this fall.

One of Anderson's attorneys, David Shelton of Seattle, said the Canadian government's request "obviously strengthens our position quite a bit in the practical sense, but in a legal sense it doesn't do much."

He added, "You don't just kidnap somebody in a foreign country and haul him across the border when you don't have extradition."

Anderson's wife said she was "on cloud nine. How can they refuse?" She said her husband had crossed the border several times before to see his family without being detected.

The Foreign Office began investigating Anderson's arrest after another of his attorneys, Don Rosenbloom of Vancouver, B.C., said he had witnesses, at least one newspaper photograph and movie film showing that Anderson was captured in Canada.

Peter Rolston, a member of the British Columbia legislature, said the U.S. Customs agents learned who Anderson was by feeding the Canadian license number of his car into a computer. Rolston said he suspected the FBI obtained the name and address of the car's owner from the British Columbia Motor Vehicle Branch.

Tax increase out for '74, but possible next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for President Ford has ruled out any tax increase requests for this year but would not do the same for 1975.

Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst said it would be unrealistic to expect congressional action on taxes in the remaining weeks of Congress' 1974 session. "At this time, the President has no plans for asking for a tax increase," terHorst said.

But then he noted that Ford would be outlining his 1975 program in January. Asked if a tax increase to fight inflation would be part of Ford's requests then, terHorst said that is the "sort of issue a President always has before him."

And he added that tax increases sometimes are needed "just as a practical governmental matter."

Shortly after terHorst's remarks to newsmen, President Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers emerged from a half-hour session with Ford and had a good deal of praise for the new President.

But Woodcock said, "I would be opposed to a tax increase across the board."

Instead, Woodcock suggested tax cuts for lower and middle-income taxpayers and increases in the upper brackets and for corporations.

Woodcock said Ford was approaching the situation with candor and expressed hope that Ford's Sept. 27-28 economic summit meeting would help educate the public on the dimensions of the problems.

Later, a White House spokesman said

half a dozen preparatory meetings for the summit will be held at cities around the country.

TerHorst's remarks on taxes came as he relayed a statement from Ford on the appointment of presidential economic counselor Kenneth Rush as chairman of the new eight-member Council on Wage and Price Stability.

"This is an uphill struggle," Ford said. "We're all in it together. We must be tough with ourselves, we must be ready for sacrifices, and we must be prepared to stick it out over the long haul."

The council is to monitor wage and price activities and use persuasion to discourage those which might be inflationary.

Tokyo Mitsubishi bombed

TOKYO (AP) — An explosion believed caused by a time bomb in a business district street crowded with lunchtime strollers killed seven persons today and injured more than 125.

Police said they had no clue to those responsible for the blast outside the headquarters of Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, one of Japan's major businesses. They said they were searching for the driver of a car who ignored an officer's order to stop and sped away from the Mitsubishi building shortly before the explosion.

The blast left a hole the size of a football in the cement sidewalk at the entrance to the building. Two minutes before the explosion, a caller warned a Mitsubishi telephone operator that two time bombs had been set and "the operator should let everyone know quickly so they could seek shelter."

After the explosion, a call to Mitsubishi's Osaka office warned, "We'll conduct a class struggle tomorrow similar to what happened today in Tokyo." Police said that caller might be a prankster.

Mitsubishi is Japan's major defense contractor, but it has not been involved in any major public controversies.

The street on which its headquarters is located had been closed to vehicles at noon and made into a pedestrian's mall for the lunch hour.

The explosion blew out most windows in the office buildings within a block or two, and many persons on the streets were cut by flying glass.

"I saw a yellow flash followed by a blast, and then glass was showering down," said an employee of a bank across the street. "The people fell to the street and were moaning from their injuries."

Two of the dead were passersby whose legs were torn off. A third body was blown against the side of an old clothes truck parked at the curb.

Two other people died in the Mitsubishi lobby, apparently ripped apart by half-inch-thick glass shards from the building's doors. The walls and floor of the lobby were sprayed with blood.

Many persons were hurt at their desks when their windows blew in or light fixtures were blown from the ceilings. The offices of the Hokkaido Development Bank across the street from Mitsubishi were a shambles.

One American woman was among the injured on the street. She was Susan Lower, wife of John W. Lower, a cameraman for the American Broadcasting Co. and son of Elmer Lower, president of ABC News. She was cut on the leg by flying glass.

Medical team hurt in plane crash

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP) — Four members of a volunteer medical group were injured Thursday when their light plane crashed after a mercy mission to an Indian reservation.

The pilot and a doctor, both from the Milwaukee area, were hospitalized in satisfactory condition. Two nurses from Plymouth were reported in good condition.

The plane had taken off from a rural landing strip at the Stockbridge-Munsee Indian Reservation when it skimmed tree tops and crashed.

The plane was en route back to Milwaukee via the Plymouth area after its passengers had helped treat and interview about 80 persons at the reservation.

They are members of Volunteer Intertribal Medicine (VIM), an informal organization of physicians, nurses and technicians which fly regularly to northern Wisconsin Indian reservations with free medical assistance.

Dr. Arthur Angove, VIM president, said the occupants were flying at their own expense in a four-seat Stinson borrowed from the Civil Air Patrol.

The injured doctor, Allan R. Crosby, 44, was a founder of VIM in 1971. He owns a larger plane which he occasionally uses to carry larger teams of doctors to reservations.

VIM says it now has about 60 doctors and 100 other medical volunteers throughout the state.

Hospitalized with Crosby was the pilot, Harry H. Hub, 49.

The nurses were Mrs. Doris M. Buckman, 45, and Miss Connie L. Skelton, 21.

Steiger applauds pension reform

WASHINGTON — House of Representatives approval was given last week to a pension reform bill that Cong. William Steiger, R-Oshkosh, says "should do much to meet one of the most important social problems in America today."

The compromise legislation is designed to protect the pension rights of 30 million workers, Steiger said in his weekly "Washington Report." Its primary goal is to guarantee that workers who have been enrolled in pension plans for a number of years won't lose their pension rights if they quit or are fired or if their company goes out of business.

A new federal Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation is established under the bill. The federal insurance system will guarantee the worker up to $750 a month of his entitlement if his pension plan fails financially. The fund would be financed through premium payments from companies with pension plans.

Companies with pension plans or that start such plans after the law takes effect must meet certain minimum standards for funding, management, participation and vesting.

"The need for legislation to deal with the increasingly greater pension problem is clear," Steiger said. Only for million workers were covered under pension plans in 1940; today there are about 30 million workers covered. The amount of money involved in retirement plan assets has risen to $150 billion.

Steiger noted the new legislation provides regulations and standards that will cost more money, and if not carefully carried out, could serve to inhibit new pension plans from being started.

Bare quorum left on unified board

The Outagamie County Unified Mental Health Services Board may have to limp along until October on an informal basis, unless it can get 100 per cent attendance from present members.

Earlier this month, the county board rejected a move to cut the size of the unified board from 15 to nine members. But resignations and term expirations have brought the active membership down to eight, the number required for a quorum to conduct an official meeting.

County Executive Alvin Woehler, who is the appointing authority, said this morning that he did not know if he would have new appointments ready for submission to the county board when it meets Sept. 10. The board must confirm appointments. Woehler said, however, that he is getting names together for appointments.

He noted the board plans to meet next week to discuss possible changes

District NFO meeting set for Saturday

FOND DU LAC — District delegates of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) will meet here at 10 a.m. Saturday at Petri's Restaurant to discuss marketing programs and resolutions for state and national conventions.

The organization's commodity marketing programs dealing with milk, beef and pork will be discussed during the meeting. Resolutions will be discussed and considered for submission at the state and national conventions.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and NFO President Orrin Lee Staley, Corning, Iowa, will attend the Wisconsin NFO state convention Oct. 5 at the Marshfield Senior High School Auditorium.

The national NFO convention will be conducted in December at Memphis, Tenn.

Hortonville teachers to get hearing on bid to organize

HORTONVILLE — Teachers who replaced the fired Hortonville Education Association members have refilled a petition to form a new union organization, and the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission has scheduled a hearing on the request for 10 a.m. Sept. 25 in the Outagamie County Courthouse annex.

Interested parties — the HEA, the present organization; the Federation of Independent Teachers, the proposed organization, and the board of education — are expected to testify. Then the WERC will decide if a representation election should be held, after receiving the hearing officer's recommendations. Meanwhile, HEA President Michael Wisnoski has denied reports that the HEA will terminate regular picketing at the Hortonville school facilities. The HEA intends to continue while the money holds out, a spokesman said.

Wisnoski said the misunderstanding developed when the HEA chose to stay off the picket lines Thursday morning because it wanted to avoid a confrontation with a group of residents and board members. At that time, a Wisnoski press release promising "innovative, sporadic and symbolic picketing" was read.

In still another development, Wisnoski said the teachers were appealing directly to the Wisconsin Supreme Court a due process denial claim that wasn't resolved to the teachers' satisfaction in Circuit Court.

Also, the Wisconsin Education Association Council, the HEA's parent organization, has hired a Milwaukee law firm as additional legal counsel.

The latest FIT petition for representation was filed with the WERC Aug. 12. The WERC denied a petition earlier this summer primarily because it was unsure of the makeup of the proposed bargaining unit.

The Hortonville Board of Education hadn't hired its full replacement staff for this fall, and the WERC felt that until new teachers were under contract the petition was inappropriate.

Technically, until another organization is officially recognized by the WERC through an election as the official collective bargaining organization, the HEA is the only official agent for teachers in the Hortonville school.

However, it presumably would be incompatible for the HEA to represent the replacement teachers in bargaining since they took the jobs of fired HEA members.

George Fleischli, Madison, the WERC hearing officer who will conduct the hearing, said the timetable on a WERC election decision would depend on the issues raised at the hearing.

Regarding the picketing, Wisnoski said the HEA wanted to avoid a confrontation, and so came on the scene late Thursday. But he said the pickets were there by 8 a.m. Thursday and at the regular early hour today to meet arriving replacement teachers.

He said the symbolic picketing, with something less than the full 30 or so HEA members left at Hortonville, would be used during most of the day.

Another HEA spokesman said the HEA still had the full support of the WEAC, despite the fact the struggle hadn't been won.

"I think that everybody just says that because we didn't win it hands down umpteen times ago, that we've been left alone," she said.

She said that funding was the key, and that the possibility of National Education Association and more WEAC funding was being explored.

Natural gas firm seeks rate hike

MILWAUKEE — The Wisconsin Gas Co., which has branch offices in Kaukauna, Waupaca and New London, has applied to the Wisconsin Public Service Commission (PSC) for an increase in natural gas rates and a public hearing on the request has been scheduled at 10 a.m. Oct. 1 at city hall.

Copies of the firm's testimony and exhibits must be made available for public inspection at company offices at least 10 days before the start of the hearing.

Wisconsin Gas distributes natural gas to approximately 370,000 customers in 494 municipalities. The firm's present rates were authorized by the PSC in April, 1973, based on a test period in 1972, but since then costs of operation have increased substantially, according to the company.

damnedest recession in years. The board would never buy it."

Neja, director of the Unified Health Services, the agency which would administer the programs, attempted to defend the increase, which would be nearly three times the 1974 budget of $725,243.

"The 1975 plan includes such new services as consultative services to communities and school districts, residential care and programming in the counties' two health facilities (Maple Lane, Shawano, and Lakeview Manor, Weyauwega), comprehensive education and evaluation services to our clients in all of the disability areas," Neja summarized. "Through case management, we will give better and continuing services to our clients and we can begin our own in-patient treatment programs."

"This plan is needed to realistically meet the needs we have identified in our eight months of operation," he said.

Dr. Patricia Stuff, director from Shawano County and chairman of the plan-

Task force on fund sharing to be named

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler said he expects to announce within two weeks appointments to an economic task force to study and make recommendations on how the county's revenue sharing funds will be used.

The executive said the special committee would have either seven or nine members and that he would meet with it regularly.

Woehler's remarks came at a meeting of the county board's finance committee during a discussion on whether $7,500 to fund a Cooperative Educational Service Agency No. 8 drug program or the remainder of the year should come out of the revenue sharing fund or from the reserve for contingencies.

Woehler had originally proposed the economic task force in a position paper presented to the county board last May. The county has about $2 million in uncommitted revenue sharing funds. The only major project for which revenue sharing has been used thus far in the county is the solid waste shredding plant.

The finance committee did recommend that if a resolution to hire Dickson Associates of Neenah to conduct a job study for the county at a cost of $15,000 is approved, the funds be taken from revenue sharing.

Supv. John Hennessy, a member of the finance unit, said he would support the proposal only if the study would include looking into the hiring of a personnel director for the county. Personnel committee chairman Sylvester Lenz said he had no objection to that being included in the resolution.

Woehler said he, too, would support hiring of a personnel director, but after the study and only if a county ordinance was passed to put personnel matters of all county departments under the director.

At present, Woehler said, he did not think a personnel director could dictate personnel hiring for the health center, highway department or social services department. "Without all of the departments it's not worth it," Woehler said.

Supv. John Schreiter, finance committee chairman, said there also should be some guarantee the county won't ignore the study once it's completed. Woehler suggested also getting prior agreements from the various employee unions that they would accept the findings of the study.

The committee held up a recommendation on a staffing proposal for county-leased and -operated data processing programs until the full committee was present. Schreiter said that Supv. Gene Retzlaff, who was absent, had asked that no vote be taken until he could be present.

A recommendation had been sent to the county board in August, on a 3-2 vote of the finance committee, that the county lease data processing equipment, rather than contract with an outside firm to have the work done. However, Hennessy, one of the majority, had indicated he would not support the plan unless a specific staffing plan was included. When that wasn't done, the resolution was referred back to the finance committee.

Woehler and the personnel committee presented a plan calling for the hiring of one person and the internal shifting of three people between departments in the courthouse.

The executive contended that while the county could get by with only one additional person if it handled its own data processing, four additional people would be needed if the county went to an outside firm.

He proposed transferring an accounting machine operator out of the clerk of courts office to become the data processing manager. One person would be transferred out of the tax listing department to become the operator and then a key-punch operator would be hired.

The third transfer would involve the deputy map maker who would be put in charge of the tax listing unit, in addition to his map making duties. Woehler said the accounting machine operator's position in the clerk of courts office could then be eliminated.

If his plan isn't followed, Woehler argued, additional personnel will be needed in the clerk of courts office, payroll, accounting and tax listing departments.

Six-fold increase too much for unified board

CLINTONVILLE — A plan for expanded services in 1975 for the mentally ill, retarded persons and alcohol and drug abusers, which would cost Waupaca and Shawano counties six times heated the amount they paid this year, was the subject of debate at a meeting of the unified board this week.

The $2 million program, $1.3 million of which would have to be paid by the two counties, finally was approved for submission to the state Division of Mental Health, but the 11 directors made it clear a new plan for less than half that amount would be forthcoming. Plans are due in Madison next week.

Part of the controversy stemmed from what Chairman Woodrow Smith termed a reneging by the division on a promise made last year that by 1975 the state would provide 100 per cent funding.

"We will take the amount the state is giving us, $780,000, and I believe our county boards each will give us $112,000," Smith said. "I'd be willing to ask for that and when they understand that the state reneged on its promise of 100 per cent funding, they will approve it."

The plan was outlined to board members by Paul Neja, program director, who said the Division of Mental Health instructed him to come up with a "no holds barred" program. The resultant $2,077,500 program, which he admitted "does represent a little more than the basic services to the three disabilities areas which we are providing this year," was greeted less than warmly by the board.

"I cannot see myself going before my county board this fall attempting to sell a program which would cost six times as much," Smith said. "I'd be run out."

Director Johnny Smith agreed. "If every county went into a program at this cost, the county, state and nation would be bankrupt," he said. "I wouldn't consider presenting such a budget at a time when we face the ning committee, told the board. "We put a lot of work into the plan. There was a lot more we wanted to put into it. There is a great deal of community input, as well as staff, in this plan. We feel that it accurately details the needs and methods by which these needs can best be met."

The planning commission set three priorities in each of the disabilities areas:

- Field services, crisis intervention and a coordinated program with school services for the mentally ill.
- Adult day care services, sheltered employment services and special living arrangements for the developmentally disabled.
- Local medical emergency services, drug counseling and intermediate care services in quarterway and halfway houses for the alcoholic and drug abuser.

With directors from both counties giving the $2 million program little chance of success, Neja defended the plan. He pointed out that the two counties spend more than $2 million each year in their social services budgets and twice that amount for highways. "It is a choice between good highways and giving more services to people," he said.

Even Stuff, who was in favor of the program, admitted. "The chances of coughing up $1.3 million between the two county boards are zilch."

George Grill, Shawano County Board chairman, said he would not present such a budget to his board. Even though the $2 million plan will go to Madison, the unified board emphasized a less expensive program will be drawn up. Neja agreed to do it, though he admitted dismay at having dollars cut out of services. "I realize it is necessary to do this," he said, "but it will have the way for the state to take on more funding. The county governments will have to decide if they want to give away their local control, because this is what it would mean — loss of local control."

Juveniles arrested in possible burglary ring

Outagamie County police said Thursday they have broken what they believe to be a burglary and "fencing" ring with the arrests of four juveniles from the Black Creek and Seymour areas.

They said three of the four were directly related to an Aug. 1 burglary at the Stereo Village store in Reedsville, in which a truckload of stereos, radios, speakers, tape decks, walkie-talkies and other goods, valued together at $2,000, was taken.

Charges of burglary and possession of stolen property will be filed against the four in Juvenile Court, although investigators are seeking to have whom they believe to be the ringleader — a 17-year-old, route 4, De Pere, youth — waived to adult court to face three burglary counts.

In addition to the Reedsville burglary, police say they have tied the four in with at least two other area break-ins. Those include the Sept. 30, 1973; burglary of the Ted Dugener residence, route 1, Seymour, and the April 10, 1974, break-in at Techlin's Bar, Freedom.

An estimated $500 in coins was taken from the Dugener residence, while undetermined amounts of beer and money were taken from Techlin's.

Besides the three counts of burglary, police are seeking a felony charge of theft against the rural De Pere youth. All four youths are either 16 or 17.

Police said information gained in the arrests could lead to the arrests of three more persons on related charges.

About $1,200 worth of the stolen stereo equipment has been recovered. Most of it reportedly had been resold by the youths before their arrest. Many of the purchasers, from the Black Creek-Seymour area, voluntarily turned the goods over to investigators.

Police said they were tipped off to the activities of the ring by a service station attendant, who observed a quantity of stereo equipment in the trunk of a vehicle he was servicing. The investigation and arrests were completed in two weeks.

Farm accident partially severs arm of man, 57

A 57-year-old route 2, Hortonville man was in fair condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital after having his right arm broken and partially severed at his farm Thursday afternoon. Injured was Arthur Wendt.

Police said Wendt was working on an unloader, which was stuck in the silo at the south end of his barn. He called to his wife to turn on the power.

At this point he slipped and was injured by the machine.

Wendt yelled to his wife to shut off the power, which she did. She then assisted him from the barn, applied a tourniquet to the arm and covered it to stop the bleeding.

When officers arrived at the scene, the tourniquet had been in place about 20 to 30 minutes and Wendt apparently had lost a substantial quantity of blood. An ambulance was summoned to transport Wendt to the hospital.

THE FAIR STORES

VALLEY FAIR, APPLETON
FOX POINT, NEENAH

(Appleton Hi-Fi Center asks, logically:)

If you can spend $329.00 on stereo equipment, why not get something really terrific?

If you ask around, people — particularly salesmen — will tell you that the three-hundred-dollar range in stereo gear will get you something okay, so-so, not-so-bad, or maybe pretty-good-for-the-money. But we are here to tell you that for $329.00 you can put together a stereo system that sounds, and is, really stupendous.

The system hinges on the brand new Advent/2 speakers, which not only sound wonderful in and of themselves, for a lot less than other speakers, but need less expensive equipment than other speakers to do it. The Advent/2's are the latest product of people who have more than twenty years' background in making better and better speakers for less and less money. These new speakers manage to sound very close in every way to the best you can do at any price. And they also look great, with white molded cabinets (that fit in with a lot of ways of living these days) instead of the usual low cost imitation woodgrain enclosures.

To get the kind of sound the Advents have to offer at such low cost, we've picked the Kenwood KR-1400 stereo receiver. It is a really clean-sounding piece of equipment that can stir the Advents up to lease-breaking levels (if wanted or needed) and bring in all the radio stations (AM and FM) you want to hear.

To play records, we've chosen the Glenburn automatic turntable — smooth, dependable, and kind to your records — with the Shure magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus.

We wouldn't be spending our ad money and taking your time this way if we weren't convinced that we will both be congratulating ourselves for a long time for latching onto something really wonderful.

Please come in to Appleton Hi-Fi Center and judge for yourself. You can tell us we sent you.

Super thud

A 15-ton crane fell off a flatbed truck at the corner of Meade and John streets about 2 p.m. Thursday, and it took two heavy duty wreckers and another crane to get the machine back on its wheels. Jerry Velie of Appleton, above, uses a chain to hook a cable to his wrecker so the crane could be pulled upright, left. The accident occurred as Thomas J. Schindler, 36, 519 Valley Road, the operator, attempted to position the boom into the hauling position. Schindler was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital for a fractured leg and cuts on the forearm and forehead and later released. (Post-Crescent photos by Tom Running)

Fees should go to offset operating cost

The Appleton Finance Committee agreed Thursday that all the local portion of industrial sewer user fee revenues should be used to offset operating costs of the treatment plant operation.

The stand came on a vote on a resolution from Ald. William Errington (15th), who said that portion of the user fee revenues that federal regulations allows the local community to do what it wants with should be earmarked for the sewage plant.

City Atty. David Geenen has said the council had already stipulated that when it approved a user fee to finance plant operation and capital costs, but Errington said he wanted to make sure.

The committee also agreed that industrial plant users should be allowed as long as possible to pay off their share of the capital expenditure cost for the $31 million treatment plant addition (25 per cent of which will be paid by Appleton's residential, commercial and industrial users).

The plant addition was originally assigned a life expectancy of 20 years, but Public Works Director Robert Miller says it will be large enough to handle community sewage treatment requirements for longer than that.

The committee agreed to seek a revenue bond payment schedule equal to the plant life assigned to the operation by the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR). In other words, if DNR says the plant will be good for 30 years (which is Miller's current estimate), then an attempt will be made to sell revenue bonds to finance the local share over a 30-year period.

In other action, the committee referred the Appleton Redevelopment Authority's 1975 budget request of $25,000 to Mayor James Sutherland, to let him decide if he wants to include it in his proposed executive budget.

The committee also agreed to contribute $250 in city money to a National League of Cities effort to challenge the constitutionality of the recently-passed federal minimum wage law.

The law, which went into effect July 1, will raise the minimum wage for government and other workers from $1.90 to $2.30 over the next three years. It — will also require payment of overtime to firemen and others, something that many communities feel might be expensive for them.

The National League of Cities challenge, which is being brought to court in an Arizona case, questions the constitutionality of "federal dictation and control" of state and municipal employment rules.

Outagamie accident rate lower than most of nation

Fox Valley residents seem to be less accident-prone than the average. Accident figures for the area and for communities in other sections of the United States were compiled by the Public Health Service as part of its annual vital statistics survey.

All types of accidents were taken into account, whether they occurred in the home or at work, while driving, swimming, boating or hunting.

Based on the last three annual reports, fatal accidents in Outagamie County have been averaging 48 per year, with 24 of them attributed to automobiles.

Included in the figures are all accidents in which local persons were involved, wherever they happened. Excluded were those affecting nonresidents.

Related to population, the toll in Outagamie County was at the rate of 40 fatalities per 100,000 people during the three-year period.

It was a lower rate than found in most other communities in the United States, where the average was 58 per 100,000. The rate in Wisconsin was 52.

Throughout the country, according to the National Safety Council, about 1,000 fewer persons died in traffic accidents in 1973 than in 1972.

It attributed the unusual drop to the fact that people did less driving and traveled at reduced speeds toward the end of the year because of the energy crisis.

Accidents have been responsible for a huge economic loss in recent years, the council found. The average over the last three years is placed at $29 billion a year. This takes into account loss of wages, medical expenses, insurance payments, reduced production and property damage.

Outagamie County's proportionate share of the cost, applying the average loss per accident locally, is approximately $12,096,000 a year.

The breakdown for the other sections of the area shows that Calumet County had 18 fatal accidents and nine auto deaths for a rate of 63 per 100,000 at a cost of $4,536,000. Waupaca County recorded 27 fatal accidents and 21 auto deaths for a rate of 73 per 100,000 at a cost of $6,904,000. Winnebago County showed the highest number of fatal accidents in the area, 54, with 21 auto deaths and a rate of 41 per 100,000 at a cost of $13,608,000.

MD telethon pledge center at Outagamie Bank

The Fox River area pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon from 10:30 p.m. Sunday to 6:30 p.m. Monday is located downstairs in the Outagamie Bank, 118 S. State St.

The fire department will display its new snorkel from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and firemen's boots and a fishbowl will be used as containers for donations at the bank.

Contributions to the telethon help support research and free clinics fighting muscular dystrophy in the U.S., Puerto Rico and Guam. Locally, the program supports a clinic at Bellin Memorial Hospital in Green Bay. Volunteers from a variety of organizations will await pledge calls at 731-5251.

Outagamie clerk files divorce suit

Outagamie County Clerk Arthur J. Hoolihan has filed suit for divorce from his wife, Marguerite, 1302 S. Harmon St., Appleton.

A temporary support order, along with the summons, has been filed with the Outagamie County clerk of courts. The order directs Hoolihan to pay $55 biweekly to his wife and to pay utility bills at her home.

The complaint specifying the grounds for the divorce has not yet been filed. Hoolihan, 60, is currently living at a hotel.

Military would not be eager to accept deserters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior defense officials would be very hesitant to accept deserters or draft dodgers if any should volunteer for military service under President Ford's conditional amnesty program.

However, Pentagon sources reporting this said the possibility of such service for some Vietnam-era deserters cannot be entirely ruled out.

They suggested defense officials might be willing to consider, on a case-by-case basis, taking back some men who went over the hill for reasons unrelated to the Vietnam war or to criminal acts committed while in service.

The Pentagon claims its analysis shows that only about 6 per cent of the 4,194 deserters who fled to foreign countries after July, 1966, are known to have acted because of objections to the Vietnam war or pacifist beliefs in general.

Other reasons cited included family, financial or personal troubles, inability to adjust to military life and charges for other kinds of offenses. No reasons were stated in about 45 per cent of the cases.

Officials said the cases were investigated by questioning relatives, friends, former comrades, officers who led them, and many of the 1,400 deserters who have returned over the years.

Pentagon and Justice Department lawyers are shaping final recommendations before Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe hand them to Ford Saturday morning. About 28,000 deserters and some 14,000 draft dodgers in this country and abroad are involved.

After Saxbe and Schlesinger met on Thursday, the attorney general said they had "narrowed down" the plan as they moved toward a joint position. He declined to go into detail.

There were no indications of any major differences between the Pentagon and the Justice Department. One defense official said Saxbe's stated views parallel those in the Pentagon on possible alternative public service for deserters and draft dodgers as a way of working their way back into U.S. society.

While Schlesinger has remained silent, Saxbe has spoken out in favor of requiring at least "an act of contrition" and up to two years of work in a hospital or some other "good works."

Ahead of the Saxbe-Schlesinger meeting, a delegation representing families of draft dodgers and deserters conferred on Thursday with Martin Hoffmann, the Pentagon's general counsel. Members said afterward they reject the idea of conditions to return of young men who left to avoid service in Vietnam.

The delegation members urged that amnesty be extended to cover more than 500,000 men who they said received bad conduct discharges for desertion during the Vietnam years.

Defense officials said they object to this. They contend there is already a process available for a review of discharges and changes in their status where warranted.

Extraordinary hazard reported in trouble light

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief judge of the U.S. District Court here is asking news organizations to help warn the public of a certain brand of household trouble light he regards as an "extraordinary hazard."

Judge George L. Hart Jr. said on Thursday he was calling the vice presidents of the three major commercial television networks to ask that they film a demonstration today of the light's hazards.

The light, manufactured by A.K. Electric Corp. of Brooklyn, N.Y., consists of a long cord attached to a light bulb protected by a metal cage. The plastic handle poses a hazard by enabling a user's hand to touch the metal electrical receptacles, potentially causing a fatal shock, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has said.

"The court feels that this particular trouble light presents an extraordinary hazard to anyone who may have purchased one and who uses it," Hart said in a statement from the bench.

"Of all the dangerous instrumentalities I have considered ... this probably appears to the court as being the most dangerous."

Hart said "the news media would be rendering a great public service ... in attending the demonstration and in disseminating this information as widely as possible."

But the judge indicated reluctance in granting a government request that he order the manufacturer and 36 distributors and retailers to take out national television and newspaper advertising to warn of the light's hazard.

The government also is seeking an order to halt further production and sale of the light. Some 186,000 have been sold for about $1.50 each, and the government has attributed the accidental electrocution of a Florida man to the appliance.

The A.K. Electric light bears no brand name or other identifying mark to distinguish it from other trouble lights.

Hart ordered further reports on the matter next Tuesday.

School bus drivers fail test

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Bus drivers in Monroe County's Jefferson School District might have to leave the driving to the parents when schools open next week. Most of the district's 25 school bus drivers flunked their driving tests.

Although embarrassed school officials wouldn't say exactly how many of the drivers failed the newly required State School Bus Driver Competency Test, they did admit it was "a large majority."

Under the new law, all 12,000 school bus drivers in the state have to take the test. A bus driver is prohibited from driving this fall if he fails to pass the test in two attempts.

School officials are urging parents to organize car pools for the first day of school next Wednesday in case the drivers don't pass the "behind-the-wheel" road skills portion of the test on their second try.

Nearly all the rural district's 2,750 students have to ride the buses to and from school each day.

Lucy suggests need for revamp of DNR

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Reorganization of the Department of Natural Resources should be considered in the next legislative session, Gov. Patrick L. Lucy said Wednesday.

Lucy said the department's present structure left it isolated from the reach of his office and the legislature, resulting in "some high-handed politics."

"I hope the next legislature will change that," Lucy said at a meeting of Milwaukee Democrats.

"There is substance to many of the criticisms voiced in the Milwaukee Sentinel," Lucy said.

The Sentinel has been running a series of articles accusing the DNR of bungling, mismanagement and failure to enforce laws.

In June, Lucy appointed James B. MacDonald, a University of Wisconsin law professor, to investigate the criticism of the DNR and make recommendations. A report is expected in a few weeks.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Stop traipsing to all those different doctors

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Since the fourth month of my last pregnancy I have had a pain in my right hip and leg. At first it wasn't bad, but in the last few weeks it has become extreme.

I have been to at least 12 different doctors and most of them have different opinions or none at all. One said it was because I gained so much weight during my pregnancy, but I have lost 40 pounds.

About the first or second month of my pregnancy I fell on the ice and seemed to land on my right side. Is it possible I injured my hip then? I do not think I can take this pain much longer. — Mrs. H.S.S.

Whether it was the fall or the weight or something else entirely doesn't really matter. The question is what is wrong — what was damaged? And what needs to be done about it? You may, for example, have suffered some displacement that puts pressure on a nerve. If your weight gain caused some shift in bone structure, losing the weight afterward wouldn't necessarily repair things.

You say you have visited at least 12 doctors. From past experience, I am inclined to discount such figures, and suspect that some of the "visits" have been no more than casual questions to an obstetrician or pediatrician: "Do you know why my hip hurts?" Has your lower spine or hip been X-rayed?

So — and this applies to other readers who write about great numbers of doctors who have different opinions or none — I suggest this to you: Go to one doctor. Have him keep after the trouble until the facts finally are found.

In your case, an orthopedist or neurologist might be best.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can bedsores be cured? Is it best to keep them moist or dry? My mother has had one for several months. It is located at the end of her spine. — Mrs. W.W.

FBI must destroy student dossier, court decides

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Lauri Paton, whose letter to a Socialist political party got her an FBI dossier, has won a court battle to have the dossier destroyed.

U.S. District Court Judge James A. Coolahan ordered on Thursday that the FBI destroy the file it began on Lauri after her letter, written as part of a high school course, was received by the Socialist Workers Party, on which the FBI was running a mail check.

Coolahan, however, denied Miss Paton's request for $65,000 damages. And he refused to grant her request that the FBI be restrained from conducting similar mail checks, in which the FBI takes names and addresses of correspondents to various groups, but does not open the mail.

Miss Paton wrote the letter last year while taking a course in politics called "Left to Right" at West Morris-Mendham Park High School. As part of the course, she tried to contact the Socialist Labor Party, but the letter she sent reached instead the Socialist Workers Party.

After taking her name, the FBI sent an agent to question Miss Paton. She then filed the suit, which was handled

Retired persons hurt by higher food costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Labor Department report released Monday shows that food prices were responsible for a substantial portion of the 8 to 9 per cent increase in retired couples' consumption costs between autumn 1972 and autumn 1973.

In updating its hypothetical budgets for retired persons at three economic levels, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said food costs jumped 19.5 per cent at the lowest budget level, 20.4 per cent at the intermediate level and 20.1 per cent at the highest level compared to 1972 figures.

Lincoln broods again in State Dining Room

WASHINGTON (AP) — A brooding portrait of Abraham Lincoln has been returned to its setting over the mantel in the State Dining Room at the White House on orders from President Ford.

The portrait by George P.A. Healy, which shows Lincoln resting his chin on his hand, was removed to a less prominent location in the East Room during the Nixon Administration.

Sugar prices increase again

NEW YORK (AP) — Amstar Corp., the nation's largest sugar refiner, has boosted the price of sugar to food processors by $2.25 per 100 pounds. It was the second such increase to industrial users in a week.

The company said on Thursday that the new escalation to $40.85 per 100 pounds was the result of rising raw sugar prices. On Monday, the price was increased by $2.10 to $38.60 per 100 pounds.

The spiraling costs could lead to higher prices for soft drinks, ice cream, candy and other foodstuffs with high sugar content. Some processors have said already that they will use sugar substitutes.

On the retail market, consumers are now paying up to $2 for a five-pound bag of sugar that cost 79 cents a year ago.

Amstar said that because of higher raw sugar prices, brought on by crop failures in recent years, industrial sugar prices were on a day-to-day basis and subject to change without notice.

The firm said it would consider orders at the lower price until the close of business next Tuesday, subject to ability to make delivery by the close of business Sept. 6.

GENERAL REVENUE SHARING

General Revenue Sharing provides federal funds directly to local and state governments. Your government must publish this report advising you how these funds have been used or obligated during the year from July 1, 1973, thru June 30, 1974. This is to inform you of your government's priorities and to encourage your participation in decisions on how future funds should be spent.

Ford remains opposed to limiting grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has reaffirmed his opposition to limiting grain exports, even as the Agriculture Department was reporting a surge in corn buying by the Common Market nations.

"The President reaffirmed his previous position that he saw no need for export controls," Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said on Thursday after a meeting with Ford.

Meanwhile, an Agriculture Department spokesman reported that the nine-member Common Market has ordered nearly 368.5 million bushels of corn for the marketing year starting Oct. 1. A week ago, the total for the present year was only 204.8 million bushels.

However, a department spokesman termed the increase in corn buying merely speculative and predicted that much of it would not be shipped.

On Wednesday, Petrus Lardinois, the Common Market's agriculture commissioner, said the community's feed grain needs would be down 10 per cent in the year ahead and Richard J. Goodman of the Agriculture Department said even larger cutbacks were planned in imported feed grain.

Goodman said the Agriculture Department expects orders for U.S. corn from the Common Market to be trimmed about 30 per cent.

Lardinois said the Common Market was planning substantial cutbacks in livestock and poultry production and large quantities of domestically produced wheat would be diverted into feed use, displacing corn which otherwise might be imported from the United States.

Last week, Japan also indicated it would make a 10 per cent cutback in U.S. feed grain needs.

In all, the export report on Thursday showed foreign orders totaling 952.8 million bushels of corn in the coming crop year, including quantities listed for "unknown" destinations.

Goodman said that total was far too high and the government is sticking to its previous corn export prediction of between 750 million and 900 million bushels for the season.

Butz said Ford agreed with him that the government should not own large stocks of grain at taxpayer expense and that whatever food reserves are maintained should be in the hands of farmers and private trade.

He said he told the President that programs such as Food for Peace should not suffer at the expense of federal budget cutting.

India presses plan for annexation of tiny Sikkim

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is pushing ahead with the annexation of Sikkim, a tiny buffer state between India and China where the Indian government already is in firm control.

Mrs. Gandhi proposed a constitutional amendment on Thursday to give Sikkim two representatives in the Indian parliament and to include the Himalayan state in India's five-year economic plans.

Sources in Parliament said the government might designate Sikkim an associate state instead of annexing it outright in an attempt to meet anticipated criticism from opponents of Mrs. Gandhi's ruling Congress party and from abroad.

The Indian government already nominates the chief executive of the Sikkimese government, giving it control of the administration, and the Sikkimese branch of the Congress party won 31 of the 32 seats in the state's legislative assembly last April.

Sikkim, a kingdom of 2,818 square miles and more than 200,000 people, was part of the British Empire until

Ford favors military base on Diego Garcia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has given wholehearted support to the Pentagon's plan to establish an air and naval support facility on the tiny British-owned island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean.

"I favor the limited expansion of our base in Diego Garcia," Ford told a news conference. He called the plan a wise policy.

The expansion plan, criticized by some Asian nations and congressional circles, should not be viewed as a challenge to the Soviet Union, Ford said. He noted that the Soviets have already what he called three major bases in the area.

Drought danger in the U.S.

Those people who live on the Great Lakes must wonder whether some way to alleviate drought conditions on the Great Plains can't be found involving the high water levels that have destroyed a lot of local property. But the diversion of water causes its own problems, as residents of North Dakota are discovering.

For several years there has been under consideration a $400 million irrigation project in northern North Dakota. The proposal is to divert water from the upper Missouri and irrigate about 250,000 acres of farm land in the north central part of the state. But what sounds like a reasonable, even an ingenious, idea is running into difficulties with North Dakota's neighbor to the north.

Canadian officials point out that the farm lands so irrigated will largely drain into the Souris River, rather a small stream which also runs through Canada. There will be a lot of salt and other minerals and probably some pesticides and such in the drain-off. Therefore, say the Canadians, the plan violates a 1909 treaty between the United States and Canada. Among other things the treaty pledges that international waters "shall not be polluted on either side to the injury of health or property on the other."

A major problem is that no one really knows how much polluting will be done by the Garrison Diversion Project or the exact nature of that pollution. In the far southwest, the United States has recently had to build pipelines to overcome the salination of rivers used in irrigation projects that afterwards flow into Mexico. United States State Department authorities concede that the Souris will be "degraded" but they argue that damage will be slight. However, the technical data is not complete and at least one ecologist has charged that "Manitoba is going to be the sewer of the project." Obviously such charges have wide political ramifications. Canada has been considerably annoyed in recent years because of alleged United States exploitation of the good relations between the countries.

Weather experts have been tentatively suggesting that the western hemisphere may be in for a period of drought in the next few years similar to that which hit the United States in the 1930's and resulted in the dust bowl years. Obviously then, trying to make up for lack of rainfall is not exclusively a problem for North Dakota or the United States. Perhaps it is fortunate that the Garrison project does raise the problem of international relations so that a wider look may be taken at the entire problem.

The state's prison record

One of the elementary responsibilities of the public affairs journalist who ventures beyond his own familiar assignments is to corroborate the statements of public officials whose records are unfamiliar to him.

A Chicago reporter recently travelled to Door County where he visited Wisconsin Gov. Lucey in his summer home and prepared an account of the governor's record and his ideas. It was a highly flattering report, a circumstance we do not find objectionable. The governor has been an enterprising and energetic head of the state government and is one of the most effective of the practical politicians Wisconsin has produced lately.

But some of the achievements credited to the governor raise serious questions about the visiting reporter's grasp of what he was told, or about the adequacy of the governor's explanation of his record in Madison.

After remarking that Wisconsin is "a law and order state," the migrant journalist related:

"Thanks to Gov. Lucey's prison reform program, 90 per cent of the state's convicted felons are now on parole or probation."

The facts: the high ratio of parole and probation existed long before Mr. Lucey's ill-fated prison reform commission report was quickly scuttled in the legislature. It was repudiated precisely because of the fact that the state's liberal probation and parole laws resulted in confining only the most serious of the offenders brought into our courts. Mr. Lucey had no connection with that parole and probation legislation. It was the work of predecessor governors and legislators.

Phosphate in the Sahara

The Spanish Sahara on the northwest coast of Africa is mostly sand inhabited by nomads. No one has ever paid much attention to it or them and certainly no nation made an attempt really to establish authority.

So why all of a sudden in this year of dreadful African desert famine are four nations trying to get control? The same old reason — money.

About ten years ago American prospectors discovered one of the world's largest deposits of phosphate under all that sand. It isn't hard to dig up the phosphate and it can be easily converted into fertilizer, in short supply around the world right now. Spain, the nominal owner of the area, has not been greatly concerned because Morocco, Mauritania and Mali were all squabbling over which African nation should pick up the phosphate and the rich rewards.

But about a year ago General Franco sent an offer to the General Assembly of Spanish Sahara. The Assembly is an advisory body representing the various tribes in the area. Franco suggested a referendum and offered internal autonomy for the people and ownership of the area's resources. Spain would merely retain responsibility for defense and foreign affairs.

The General Assembly of the United Nations as well approved a resolution calling for a referendum. But a nation which gained its own independence after bitter denunciations of colonial powers now all of a sudden sees things differently.

The Moroccan Premier and the Foreign Minister went to Madrid to discuss the situation with Spanish leaders this summer. King Hassan of Morocco now claims that the Spanish Sahara was really torn from the "motherland" — Morocco — some time ago. Moroccan leaders oppose a referendum because they claim that the nomads have no political sense and wouldn't know what they were doing. Besides the residents of the few towns have some Spanish ties.

The nomads of Spanish Sahara quite suddenly are supposed to need the tender, loving care of others. In the past, or Before Phosphate, they could simply take care of themselves.

Where does tour bureau fit in bureaucracy?

MADISON — Again there is an animated argument about the proper location in the state government bureaucracy of the promotion budget for tourism that has gradually emerged as the state's most favored industry.

But in the normal pattern of the political pressures that involve any adjustments in the government's housekeeping at any level, there are at least three conflicting proposals for the reshuffling.

Gov. Patrick Lucey has indicated that he favors the transfer of the tourism development service from the Department of Natural Resources to the Department of Business Development which he sees as a valued instrument for closer relations in a political way with the business community.

William Kidd, named by the governor as secretary of the business development agency two years ago with considerable fanfare, now says he believes it is a good idea too, although he had reservations earlier.

The Department of Natural Resources, which has had jurisdiction during the three decades or more that the state has subsidized the private vacation industry, quite naturally wants to retain the service, perhaps regarding any transfer move as a reflection on its own performance.

Meanwhile, various spokesmen for the vacation trade and commercial recreational associations see the discussion about transfer of control as an opportune time to press their own plan that thus far has enlisted only negligible interest. They want a new and independent state agency expressly dedicated to tourism development.

The latter appears to be the least likely of the alternatives to get enough legislative support for enactment. After years of pushing for a more closely integrated pattern of state service administration, it appears unlikely that the legislature will invite additional pressures for the severance of other services and their operation as separate commands.

Transfer of the sizeable tourism development budget and its related services — including the commercial recreation bureau that is primarily assigned to research and statistics — to Kidd's general business promotion agency undoubtedly will appear most plausible to those without the prejudice of direct involvement.

Yet one transfer will generate queries about the transfer of similar services now berthed elsewhere. Most conspicuous of these is the farm product publicity bureau of the state Department of Agriculture, best symbolized by the annual "Alice in Dairyland" promotion. In fact, when the administrations toyed with the idea of pulling together the state's promotion services, they included the dairy products publicity division. They failed, of course, because the farm lobby objected.

Some critics are quite sincere in their objection that luring of tourists to Wisconsin for additional pressure on outdoors resources is incompatible with the basic assignment of the natural resources department to protect and preserve the forests, waters, fish, wildlife, scenery and other treasured assets.

Yet it can be argued with considerable plausibility, as one of its division officers argued in a special report the other day, that it is also uniquely equipped to be a kind of traffic controller for the tourist flood. Who knows more precisely where the resources are endangered and where the tourist armies ought to be redirected?

It may be that the officer's candid account of the risks inherent in the heavy tourist pressures was purposefully timed to influence the tourism promotion bureau transfer debate. Yet it has a logic that will not be easily ignored, while Secretary Kidd said nothing about resource management and spoke only of "promotion."

Lower speeds saving lives

We talk glibly about "the value of life" whether on the battlefield or in the embryo, but how much do we really care, and what are we willing to give up to sustain this value?

Last month the National Safety Council's board of directors passed a resolution urging Congress "to continue to support a maximum speed limit of 55 mph throughout the United States." I don't see how anyone can rationally oppose this recommendation.

For the first three months of the new limit, auto deaths declined by 25 per cent from the first three months of the year before. This gives a projected saving of 8,500 lives annually—or nearly 230 lives each week—through the reduction in highway speed.

The council's decision was influenced by turnpike statistics showing that reduction in speed, rather than reduction in amount of travel, is responsible for the drop in fatalities. Although travel dropped only 18 per cent in the first two months of 1974, turnpike figures showed a nearly 60 per cent reduction in fatalities.

As the council said: "Travel reduction reduces motorists' chances of having accidents, but speed reduction reduces the severity of the accidents that do occur."

This is because of a fact of physics little known to most motorists—until they hit, or get hit. If you are going 40 miles an hour, your force of impact is not twice as great as when you are going 20, but four times as great. As the speed doubles the force of impact squares.

In point of fact, the council reports, the chances of death or serious injury in a traffic accident double for each 10 mph increase over 50 mph. Incredibly enough, if you are going at 55, your chances of getting killed in a crash are less than half the chances if you are going 65. (And this is without even taking into consideration the fact that at much above 65, the car is controlling us, rather than we the car.)

At first, traveling as I do in the summer between the country and the city, I found the new limit rather repressive. But soon I adjusted to it and found it both physically and psychologically less taxing than clipping along at a steady 70 as I used to. I now see things I never saw before, feel less pressure to "make time," and am not hypnotized into near-sleep by the scenery slipping by at flashing speed.

And then, of course, there are those 8,500 lives a year—a cumulative figure that can exceed all our wartime losses. None of us has been spared the tragedy of a friend or relative prematurely lost in a traffic accident. This is our lost way of paying tribute to their senseless and avoidable deaths, by making it up to the future.

Gerald Ford is making a hash of the national "reconciliation" he promised on assuming office. I regret saying so, but somebody must: Mr. Ford's tactless pitch on amnesty, his Oval Office cozying with Bella Abzug and the Black Caucus, his sharp policy shift to the left, his extraordinary courtship of the New York-Washington media — these are all tendencies that lend themselves more to renewed divisiveness than to anything resembling national cohesion and unity.

A Republican politician with more national experience than Mr. Ford would probably have sensed that something was wrong earlier. But Mr. Ford comes from a very narrow cultural-political background — the old Dutch-settled, Calvinist area around Grand Rapids, Michigan. It is not like the rest of the United States, and Mr. Ford knew this; he knew he had to shift gears. He just shifted the wrong way.

A note, if I may, on the Dutch areas of western Michigan and their political cousins, the Swedish areas of far western New York (Jamestown) and northern Illinois (Moline and Rockford) and two or three kindred Norwegian districts (especially southeast Minnesota). Fiercely anti-slavery, strongly "moral" in their politics, these sections were almost religious in their support of the Union during the Civil War, and in the century that followed, they were religiously Republican.

A political metamorphosis

President Ford would describe their politics as "conservative," and in one sense, it is. Such districts are conservative in personal behavior, thriftiness in economics, neat in the maintenance of their farms and towns. But they have a predilection to move toward left or "moral militance" positions on social issues, and in the last six or eight years, the political metamorphosis of their Republican Congressmen has been striking.

In almost every case, men with solidly conservative records began to turn liberal: ex-Rep. Charles Goodell (Jamestown, N.Y.), Rep. John Anderson (Rockford, Ill.), Rep. Tom Railsback (Moline, Ill.), Rep. Albert Quie (Southeast Minnesota) and Rep. Guy Vander Jagt (Dutch Michigan). Each of these men has played a key role in pro-busing, anti-war, amnesty or pro-impeachment politics.

As House Republican leader, Gerald Ford did not move to the left. But his breadth of political vision was limited by this same narrow mold, and it colored his eventual shift to a "broader" national perspective.

As for Mr. Ford, by courting Bella Abzug, the Black Caucus, the Washington Post, and anti-war deserters, he has insulted the basic cultural politics of conservatives whom he does not know and whom he may have naively taken for granted. Here some mathematics are in order.

If Mr. Ford is to be re-elected in 1976, his majority will necessarily include the following components: About half of the supporters needed will come from the 30-35 per cent of the people who think that Richard Nixon was unfairly hounded out of office; some two-thirds of those Mr. Ford can reasonably solicit for votes think that the national press is biased and malicious; some 80 per cent of those already supporting Mr. Ford in the trial heats don't like busing (and probably don't sympathize with the goals of the Black Caucus); and I would venture that 75 per cent of those Mr. Ford must rely on don't like amnesty.

The bottom line is very simple: In 1976, Mr. Ford will need to get most of his votes from the constituency that voted for Nixon in 1972 or Nixon and Wallace in 1968, and so far, Mr. Ford is offending as many as he is pleasing.

If I were to make a list of the voting streams that the President does not understand or has shown no sympathy with, I would list these: the neo-conservative (or "populist" conservative) George Wallace electorate reaching from the steel towns of Appalachian Pennsylvania to the Gulf Coast piney woods and the Rocky Mountains; the Southern and Southwestern Ronald Reagan element of the Republican Party; and the end-of-the-subway-lanes ethnic conservatives of the North (like the N.Y. Conservative Party) whose politics are pitched in opposition to the alliances of elite liberalism.

All told, this is 30-35 per cent of the country, a frustrated 30-35 per cent, and it must have a central role in any Ford Administration and any attempt at national reconciliation. Otherwise, as discussed in an August 21 Washington meeting, including persons close to Ronald Reagan and George Wallace, a third party could be in the works.

Hard-hitting show, like a wet noodle

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — You may be a bit pooped at the end of the Labor Day weekend, but take a look Monday night at ABC News' "Closeup" which dwells on the programs the three networks offer viewers every night of the year.

The hour-long show, covering only entertainment programs, studies how and why they're aired, and the effect ratings, advertisers, various critics and the much-publicized annual Senate hearings run by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., have on the direction these shows take.

Called "Prime Time TV: The Decision Makers," it's a fair over-all look at a much-belabored subject. It's worth watching if only to learn more about various pressures shaping the networks' evening schedules.

Alas, it is as hard-hitting as a wet noodle.

No startling revelations emerge, the pesky issue of reruns never is raised and the show's explanation of the controversial A. C. Nielsen ratings system — the heart of television life — is skimpier than the string bikini.

The biggest gripe I have about the show is that virtually all of it centers on the New York establishment, with well-known worthies here emitting the same criticism or words of defense they've made to print reporters for years.

The hinterlands, as some call any place outside Manhattan, are barely represented.

The general managers of stations WFAA in Dallas and WZZM in Grand Rapids, Mich., check in, as do Richard Shull and Anthony LaCamera, TV critics for the Indianapolis News and the Boston Herald American.

But that's it. And no average viewers are given a say, which easily could have been worked in had ABC excised from the show what amounts to a self-serving corporate defense for showing the movie, "Fuzz."

I'd love to see what'd happen if a network bent on examining its navel and those of its competitors had it done by an affiliate with a good news operation — say, WCCO in Minneapolis or KUTV in Salt Lake City.

The idea simply would be to examine network television with a non-New York perspective. I know the sun will rise in the west before this happens, but the change could prove highly beneficial.

Ah, well, check out ABC's show Monday night anyway. It has its share of flaws, but at least it offers a taste of what goes on along Broadcast Row, goings-on network TV news specials rarely examine.

And what this "Closeup" segment omits or skips over might even provoke a harder try by the two other networks.

Pack tackles champ Dolphins

7-10 — Channels 7-11 — The Green Bay Packers, seeking to get back on the winning track after losing to Denver last week, invade the Orange Bowl to tackle the formidable task of meeting the defending Super Bowl champions, the Miami Dolphins.

7-7:30 — Channel 5 — "Sanford and Son" has a funny episode. Lamont (Demond Wilson) suddenly announces he is marrying a Puerto Rican which induces Fred (Redd Foxx) to have a "heart attack." This is all so son can get pop to the hospital for tests. Fred is an impossible, impatient patient. (R)

7:30-8 — Channel 2 — "Good Times" has some snappy dialogue but the plot seems more contrived and predictable than usual. Florida (Esther Rolle) has been selected as an honest face for a TV commercial and there could be $5,000 in it for her. But — and the but is one every viewer will predict. (R)

8-10 — Channel 5 — "Friday Night at the Movies: The Little House on the Prairie" is a very nice family film and will be a series on NBC-TV in a couple of weeks. It stars Michael Landon as the head of a pioneer family moving West and facing fire, Indian threats

Two kinds of chicken from one great chicken place.

Almost everybody loves Colonel Sanders' Original Recipe Kentucky Fried Chicken, with its secret blend of 11 herbs and spices.

But some folks like a crunchier crust on their chicken. So we make our Extra Crispy chicken crispy and crunchy on the outside, tender and juicy on the inside.

Both kinds are "finger lickin' good," so come on in for some. And be sure to bring these coupons with you.

Choose your Chicken—Original Recipe or Extra Crispy. Then choose your savings.

A FILM THAT HAS THE CROWD CHEERING!

"A PROVOCATIVE, SHREWDLY MADE SHOCKER!" When Charles Bronson begins to shoot the bad guys, it's difficult not to cheer him on with loud shouts of encouragement. And so New York has its first vigilante and perhaps its first real crime deterrent. IT ALL WORKS!
—Kathleen Carroll, N.Y. Daily News

"RARELY IN SCREEN HISTORY HAS A MOVIE CAUSED SO MUCH VIOLENT AND CONTROVERSIAL REACTION FROM BOTH AUDIENCES AND CRITICS! WE ARE READY FOR ACTION. BRONSON PROVIDES IT. THRILLER!" COMPLEX AND STARTLINGLY ORIGINAL FILM THAT WILL ANGER AND PROVOKE!
—Rex Reed, N.Y. Daily News

"A FIRST-RATE SUSPENSER!" What makes this fantasy work is the superb performance of Charles Bronson. The breath-stopping denouement and tidy twist resolution will satisfy every base instinct 'we liberals' are heir to!
—Judith Crist, New York Magazine

"A TIME-BOMB OF A MOVIE," exploding at just the right moment in a glare of truth that will touch and terrify us all. It crackles with the electricity of dangerous big city streets, and is a timely in its terror that the switchblade seems to prick the viewer's skin, the bullet seems to whiz along his ear.

A rustic hall tree for hanging up clothes

BY CAPPY DICK

As all boys and girls know, a hall tree is a tall object with several hooks attached near the top on which jackets, hats

Real tree branch and other outer garments may be hung. It is not a real tree, of course.

However, a real branch from a real tree can be turned into a hall tree for a corner of your own room.

It should be a dead limb about five feet long and it must have small branches all around, as shown in Figure 1. It could be a branch that was blown to the ground by a strong wind.

Remove the bark from the limb and its branches and give it a coat or two of shellac to make it shiny and easy to clean from time to time.

Insert the base in a Christmas tree and place the tree in a corner of your room.

Fishermen again don aprons at fish broil

Some women have no gripe when their husbands pack up for a lengthy fishing trip, for they know that sooner or later they will be the beneficiaries of the trip.

They reaped the benefits Tuesday evening at the second annual fish broil held at the Appleton Yacht Club. While their fishermen husbands cleaned, prepared, cooked and served 10 grilled lake trout, which had been caught earlier in the summer on a fishing expedition off the Lake Michigan shore of Algoma, the women feasted on the scrumptious meal.

The men exhausted after their cooking venture, turned the kitchen clean-up over to two of the women.

Howard Karrow and Robert Gritzmacher, organizers of the event, gathered their crew and began work about 7 a.m. Tuesday in the Yacht Club kitchen.

Invited guests began arriving around 6:30 p.m. for the delectable broiled trout. Side-dishes of home-made rye bread, potato salad, cole slaw and jello salad were potluck.

After devouring about 80 pounds of grilled fish stuffed with sage dressing, the 60 guests departed around midnight.

Dig in!

Lucile Stoegbauer, above, salts her fish, before digging in during the fish broil Tuesday at Appleton Yacht Club. The men did all the cooking, preparing and serving, as well as the catching of the 10 grilled fish. Additional dishes were brought by the guests.

On the fire

Robert Gritzmacher holds the trout while Harland Thern bastes it. Gritzmacher and Howard Karrow were the primary organizers of the event. Putting the fish on the grill was the culmination of a day's work in the kitchen.

Cleaning and stuffing

At left, Howard Karrow puts sage dressing into one of many lake trout which were to be broiled later in the evening. At right, Jim Hiltunen washes the fish in preparation of the fish broil. All the fish were caught by the men on a fishing expedition earlier in the summer at Algoma.

Couples united in marriage

LaBouve-Mennen

SHEBOYGAN — Carol Ann LaBouve and Gary J. Mennen were wed Saturday during a celebration at St. Peter Claver Catholic Church. Parents of the newlyweds are Roma and Frank LaBouve, and Rosemary and Gilbert Mennen, 937 W. Roberts Ave., Appleton.

Maid of honor Jan Kliejunas was accompanied by Diane Mennen and Mrs. Ronald Remling, bridesmaids. Cheryl Remling was junior attendant.

Assisting best man Charles A. Dresback, Waukesha, were John LaBouve and James Mennen.

The former Miss LaBouve was graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater and teaches second grade at St. Pius X School, Appleton. Mr. Mennen, who also graduated from UW-Whitewater, is an accountant for the State of Wisconsin in Appleton. The couple will make their home in Appleton.

Mrs. Gary Mennen

Mrs. Roger Buehner

Koerner-Buehner

Grace Lutheran Church was the setting Wednesday as Sandra Koerner and Roger Buehner spoke marriage vows. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koerner, 913 W. Lorain St., and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Buehner, 1003 W. Packard St.

Honor attendants, Sharon Koerner and Ronald Woehler, were accompanied by Mrs. Stephen Golden, Gary Koerner, Stephen Golden and Timothy Geenen. Junior attendants were Susan and Glenn Koerner and Peter Shwonek.

The former Miss Koerner is employed at Fleet Farm. Mr. Buehner is with Allis Chalmers.

Stadler-MacLeod

Monte Alverno Retreat Center was the setting for the marriage of Marilyn Stadler and Martin MacLeod Monday.

Honor attendants were Sharon Stadler, Milwaukee, and Peter MacLeod, Aylmer, East, Quebec, Canada. Linda, Anne Marie and Shelly Stadler were junior attendants.

The new Mrs. MacLeod is a registered nurse at St. Elizabeth Hospital. Mr. MacLeod is working on his doctorate degree at the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

Free dance, beer slated for Monday at Labor Center

The Appleton Federation of Labor Unions has announced sponsorship of a free dance from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight at the new Labor Center, corner of Ballard Road and OO on Monday. Refreshments will be served.

During the afternoon, 10-cent beer will be served at the center's Red Carpet Bar.

A fish bowl will be available in the bar and hall for donations to the Labor Day Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy fund.

Tell opponents nothing when you need an error

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

How would you play today's hand at six spades? "Under an assumed name," you may wish to reply. It's a risky slam, to be sure, but the chances are that we've all been in worse contracts. This sort of hand is often made — if played shrewdly.

signal with a high diamond to show his strength in that suit. The opponents would eventually take the king of clubs and the ace of diamonds.

CLUBS ARE VITAL

The actual declarer saw that he had no chance for the slam unless the clubs broke evenly. The only real hope was that the player who took the club trick wouldn't know which red suit to lead.

South therefore led the ace of clubs at the second trick and led a low club at the third trick. This gave the opponents no chance to signal.

West took the king of clubs and had to guess. Which should he lead, a diamond or a heart?

West had left his crystal ball at home, so he had no way of knowing which suit to lead. As it happened, he led a heart, and South made the slam. Declarer won the ace of hearts, drew the rest of the trumps and ran the clubs to discard his losing diamond.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S-8 7 5 2 H-J 9 4 2 D-K 6 5 C-K 9. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart. The hand is strong enough for a response, and it would be awkward to bid 1 NT since it would be difficult to find a fit in hearts of spades. If partner raises to two hearts with weak three-card support, you will have difficult hand to play but you won't be very high. If partner jumps in hearts he will have good four-card support.
